PREFATORY REMARKS.

The Atwater family can congratulate itself that this history, the third compiled by the writer, and preceded by two small records edited by the late Rev. E. E. Atwater, of New Haven, Conn., the first being published in the early fifties, followed by a second twenty years later, covers a period of nearly seventy years of research and compiling. Probably no other family in the United States has been so fortunate as to have two of its members follow in succession, tracing, searching, classifying, and publishing their reports at stated periods. There can be no doubt of the fact for the writer has familiarized himself with nearly every genealogy printed, and knows of not one that has a continuous record.

The work has never depended upon the family contributing toward its support or guaranteeing expenses of publication. In fact, the purchase of a book has been a privilege granted.

In this respect the writer visited one Atwater who lived several hundred miles away. After giving the family history the host asked his guest how much he charged for his book. The price of $5.00 brought an expression of astonishment at the high cost. The expense of the expedition had been $35. The guest told his host while it would cost as much more to return, if he should sell him a copy, which was immaterial, the difference between the price paid and the expense would be about the profit and loss each sale entailed. Conscientious compilers, who have had experience, realize a family history must necessarily be accomplished without any expectation of compensation.

While one edition after another has been more complete, the present book has afforded a chance to be the product of experience that can only be gained by a long apprenticeship. We had supposed that but very few family names in America and Canada had escaped our notice, but after wading through several hundred town, city and county directories we found that there were nearly 300 names unrecorded. When this book is printed we expect to add sketches and pedigrees of every one who can be traced out. This is no easy task, for although we may have the correct address, and send one request, a second, even a third, the chances are that not one in ten will send an answer. Then some one in the town or city where the recalcitrant lives must be found who will furnish the information sought or the compiler must give up his time and money to seek it himself.

While many may not care whether their progenitors were good, bad or indifferent, only one had the boldness to say so, John Birdseye Atwater, of Minneapolis, Minn., who curtly dismissed a courteous inquiry by writing: "I am not interested in family genealogy, even in myself." Yet his father had been an honored judge of the state of Minnesota and we had hoped to print more of his life work.

The descendants of David Atwater for the first 125 years of their existence, had followed agricultural pursuits, were tradesmen, shipping merchants, and some few had served as craftsmen in various trades. They do not seem to have devoted much time to educational training or studied for professional careers until Jeremiah, grandson of Jonathan (for his period the merchant prince of New Haven), became steward of Yale college, serving from 1778 to 1798.

Since that period have graduated from various colleges ministers, doctors, lawyers and men of science and these have located in various sections of the United States and foreign countries. Five have been presidents of colleges, three brothers serving different colleges at the same period. We could furnish statistics of all who have been identified with the growth of the country professionally, but figures are dry reading.

We know some ridiculous errors have occurred in the first and second volumes, but we asked for criticisms and corrections. We know we never shall be forgiven for one error where by mistake a son was born a month after marriage. This was brought to our attention seventeen years after it first appeared in print and the voice which came over the telephone was choked with indignation. The unfortunate subject of this misprint we were told had never been informed, and it was hoped never would be, especially for our comfort. So you who have never committed a typographical sin know now that death is the only preventative of getting your deserts, for time has no allaying or soothing mitigation.

We present in this book the descendants of Elihu Atwater, who went from his home town, Wallingford, Conn., to locate in Florida prior to 1820. We had formerly traced him to a location called Cowford in that state and there all trace was lost. It has been our good fortune to include many other families heretofore unrecorded, the detection of which has been brought about from chance or apparently vague efforts. Persistency in many instances has revealed family connections more than one hundred years old.

The simple record of births, marriages and deaths which we have tried to record correctly we do not attach much importance to. But where the man or woman has accomplished some worthy achievement the foundation is set as being worth while to perpetuate the family name. The three Atwater Histories are not monotonous presentations in stereotype form of one author, but generally told by some representative of each branch so as to record facts pertinent to distinguished deeds or the life history of a deserving career. Our position is similar to the dictagraph, or rather the typewriter, being the instrument to place on paper the information which others seek to convey.

This being a war period, it is timely to say that the family has been represented in every war which has taken place in the United States, notably the French and Indian, the war for independence, the 1812 war, the Mexican, the Civil, the Spanish, and at this writing the allied cause, notably by the two young sons of Richard Mead Atwater, Jr., respectively nineteen and seventeen years old. In the Civil war an older brother of the writer entered at sixteen years of age, his tragic career being told elsewhere.

After reading the family history covering the period of over four hundred years, who can gainsay that it should not be perpetuated?

Where no change has occurred in families since the publication of the second volume, these names have been omitted.

DESCRIPTION OF THE EARLY FARM OF THE ATWATERS.

The following is a copy of a letter written by Rev. E. E. Atwater, of New Haven, Conn., on a visit to London, about 1870.

The place where the Atwaters lived in London resembles in soil that of Cedar Hill. Some of the land in the neighborhood is so sandy that it was never thought worth enclosing until within the last fifty years, though now with the improved husbandry of modern times, it does very well, especially in wet seasons. The land which they owned and cultivated for several centuries is lower than the open heath of which I have been speaking. It borders, indeed, upon a brook, and two lanes extend from the highway through the land to the vicinity of the brook. One of the lanes still retains the name of Water street.

I have no doubt it took the name from our family who were called water and waters as well as at waters. Indeed, I find in old records a great many ways of writing it. One of our ancestors, who calls himself Atwater, speaks of Adam Water, his brother's son, and the father of this Adam styles his name a church warden, Edward Water. The land lies something like the following diagram.

At figure 1st was an Atwater house, the chimney of which is still standing, a laborer's house having been built up to it with the bricks of the old house. The house with the land was given to David (the emigrant) by an uncle of the same name who had buried his only child. Adjoining it at 2, is an old house, still standing, of a type so antique that I cannot think it is less than 300 years old. It has some peculiarities of architecture which I have seen nowhere else except at Ospringe, which an old historian of the county says was the home of the Atwaters before they lived at Lenham. At 3 and 4 are two other houses very similar to 2, but not so well preserved. No. 4 is scarcely fit to be inhabited but some apartments are occupied, I think, though I found no person at home either at my first or second visit. There are some fine large ash trees near No. 3.

I think that No. 2 was the home of the father of the emigrants as their grandfather in his will describes it as adjoining Grant's Gate, which is still the name of No. 1. I found on the parish register the baptism of Joshua, June 2nd, 1611, and of David Oct. 8th, 1615. I found also the baptism of Anna, their sister, May 13th, 1606, and have no doubt she is the "sister Atwater" mentioned in the seating of the meeting house in 1646, and that she made the family of Joshua count two in the first census though there is no evidence that he had a wife until he married Mary Blackman in 1651. These three were orphaned by the death of their father in Oct., 1636, and of their mother the following January.

The expedition of Davenport and Eaton was by this time on foot, for in Jan., 1637, the vessel in which they sailed had been engaged. The inference is easy that these young people left free from the duty of staying at home sold their property and came to New England hoping to find a place where the arm of Lords could not touch them.

Hoping these additions to the other letter may be interesting,

I am yours truly,

EDWARD E. ATWATER.

GENEALOGY AND HISTORY

(For other information see first and second volume Atwater Genealogy and History.)

FIRST GENERATION.

1. David Atwater, son of Thomas and Susan Narson, baptized in Lenham church October 8, 1615. He was born in Royton in Lenham, England, and in the month in which he became twenty-one years of age, October, 1636, his father died, and his mother died scarcely more than two months later,—in January, 1637. In less than six months from the latter event, June 26, 1637, the brothers, Joshua and David, with their sister Ann, arrived in Boston. It cannot be doubted that their arrangements for removal, so hastily made at that time of general discontent and apprehension in church and state affairs, involved large pecuniary sacrifices. He was one of the first settlers of New Haven, Conn.

He married Damaris Sayre, daughter of Thomas Sayre, of Southampton, L. I., before March 10, 1646-7. She died April 7, 1691. He died October 5, 1692.

Their children were:

2. Mercy, born Feb. 29, 1647.
3. Damaris, b. Nov. 12, 1648.

Francis Atwater:

Dear Sir:—Yours received, also several previous ones, intended to write before, but am a very busy woman and my information is limited, as to date, utterly clouded.

My grandfather was Jesse Atwater, married Lucretia Marten, in New York state "some where," came to Du Page county, took up 200 acres of land for which he paid the government $125 per. There were seven children, born all in New York. Four girls, three boys—Olive, Betesy, Ann, Rachel, William, George and Benjamin who was the youngest and my father. Olive married a Ben Fuller. They lived on a farm just half way between Aurora and Chicago, the old Indian trail. It was a day's journey in those days, so they put up the travelers and opened a Tavern. It was called the half-way house and stands to-day a landmark of times gone by. A small town started there and is called "Fullersburg." My father married Lucy J. Black from Broon county, a descendent of Robert Burns. There are three children, Elnora, Alberte, William. My father's name went down the first one on the list at President Lincoln's first call for volunteers. I am very proud of my father. He served all through, was wounded at the last big battle. My mother gave here life, as well, left with three little children, one a babe in arms, and all the hardships to go through; the then called galloping consumption developed and my father came home to find my mother dead and the children gone. If you write to Alfred Atwater, Elmhurst, Du Page Co., Ill., I think you may get more direct information. ,

Yours cordially,

ALBERTE ATWATER.

159. Elihu, son of Elihu; m. — Scott. He left Connecticut soon after or before 1800. He went south, stopping two years in the Carolinas before going to Florida where he settled. He drew land from the government and located at St. Mary's, Camden Co., Ga.; from there he moved to Quincy, Fla., and practiced law. He was given a certificate from Samuel Wyllys, secretary of the state of Connecticut, dated May 22, 1801, that he had been admitted to the New Haven county bar and resided in Wallingford, Conn. He accumulated some wealth and owned quite a number of slaves. He d. Oct. 17, 1828.

He was a soldier in the American Revolution. In the attack of the British on New Haven he was wounded and left for dead on the field, but recovered. After the defeat of Napoleon at the battle of Waterloo he was employed by the friends of the emperoor to purchase a tract of land in Northern New York, which they intended as a retreat for the emperor should he succeed in making his escape. But on hearing that Napoleon had given himself to the English the project was abandoned.

The two townships of land purchased and settled are in St. Lawrence Co., N. Y. It was a dense forest, and the only means of getting there was a road cut through the woods from Canada, corduroyed in wet and marshy places. Mr. Atwater built a store and saw mill and spent his fortune in improving his property. The two towns were named Russell (after Mr. Atwater) and Norfolk. The present site of Potsdam was in this tract (12 miles by 6 miles). As there was much ague the country was slowly settled, and thought to be unhealthy and Mr. Atwater failed when his son was in the midst of his college course and he was obliged to teach school to get money to carry him through college and the Theological Seminary.

That was the ancestral home of that branch of the family, their father (John 242) coming from Connecticut, settled there in 1800. He served three years during the Revolutionary War as minute man during his teens. The minute men were soldiers who served as they were needed, returning home between times. He was under General Wadsworth's command and was present at the battle of White Plains. Although but a lad he was trusted and honored in those perilous times to carry dispatches between the commander-in-chief and General Lafayette. When the British took possession of New York the young soldier was lying sick in a hospital in the city, and as he was being taken away in the best available ambulance—a lumber wagon with straw scattered over the bottom, the driver was killed by a British bullet—but the young soldier lived to marry two wives and be the father of fourteen children. He died at Genoa June 2nd, 1838.

JEREMIAH ATWATER, NO. 348.

348. Jeremiah, son of Jeremiah, m. Clarissa Storrs, d. 1834; (2) Mrs. Susan Barnes, whom he survived four years until his death, July 29, 1858. He was the first president of Middlebury College, Vermont, and afterward President of Dickinson College, at Carlisle, Pa. He was a native of New Haven, and a graduate of Yale College, class of 1793; was tutor in that college from 1795 to 1799; President at Middlebury from 1800 to 1809, and President at Carlisle from 1810 to 1818, when he resigned, after which he lived a very retired life on the parsimony left him by his father, the later years almost as a recluse. His house in New Haven stood on the site once occupied by Colonel John Dixwell, famous as one of the judges by whom King Charles I. was sentenced to execution as a traitor. Dr. Atwater was a man of great reading, and of a retentive memory, especially of historic events and the lives and characters of men he had known, but had not a fondness for writing, and has left, it is believed, but few literary remains of his life.

Mr. Francis Atwater,

New Haven, Conn.

Dear Sir: As you seem quite persistent in writing me, I will tell you all I know which is not much. I may, and may not be any relation to your family. My grandfather, Ward Atwater, I think, was born in Nova Scotia, near Halifax. My grandmother, I know, was. She was Mary Ann Biglow. There were twelve children born to this union, seven sons and five daughters. Seven of these children were born in Nova Scotia. All lived to grow up but three who died in childhood. They lived in Eastern Wisconsin some years after coming from Nova Scotia. From there they came to La Crosse county, Wis., being in the western part of the state. Their children married and raised families. The most of them, at least. One son, James, a soldier of the Civil war, was unmarried and Rebecca never had any. My aunt, Rebecca Byrns, of Sparta, Wis., is the only one of the children living. She is seventy-seven years of age. My father, Wililam B. Atwater, died April 8, 1917. My mother, Calista Post Atwater, has her home with me. There were three boys and one girl in their family, Elmer E., my oldest brother, died (or was drowned) at the age of 23. He left an infant daughter who is now Mrs. Guy Lindsey of Utah. My other brother, J. T. Atwater, lives in Barron, Wis. He buried his first wife and married again. Has four living children, three of them married. My only sister, Grace M. Jewett, lives at Rice Lake, Wis., and has eight living children, all unmarried as yet. My sister is fifteen years younger than I am and the two brothers are older. As for me I have two living children, a son, who lives on the farm, and about fifty feet from me and has three children. A daughter, Lenore Kirst, who lives about thirty miles from me, and has none, as she has only been married one year, the 4th of April, there is plenty of time yet.

Yours truly,

L. F. ATWATER.

Rice Lake, Wis., April 7, 1918.

Francis Atwater,

New Haven, Conn.

Dear Mr. Atwater:—Your letter at hand and was surprised to hear of such an Atwater. I didn't think there were enough of the family to make a very long history. I was married March 21st, 1900, to Harry M. Jewett, of West Salem, Wis. We have had nine children.

In 1862, he married Sarah Josephine Waring, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who lived only fifteen months, dying with their baby daughter at St. Cloud, Minn. On Jan. 7, 1867, he married Cornelia Augusta Evarts, of Burlington, Vt., who with their daughter, Ella Evarts, survives him. Ella E. was born Nov. 20, 1868; m. Nov. 12, 1903, Daniel Parker Kilborn. Mr. Atwater died of erysipelas at Point of Rocks, Mont., on Good Friday, April 7, 1882, and was buried at Dillon, Mont., on Easter Sunday.

His profession was that of civil engineer, and his experience was gained in government surveys in Michigan and Minnesota. For many years he was secretary of the Land Department of the St. Paul and Pacific R. R., with offices at St. Paul, and the town of Atwater, Minn., was named for him. Shortly before his death, in 1882, he received from the federal government the appointment of Deputy Mineral Surveyor of the territories of Montana and Idaho, with a salary of $10,000. He was the first in that country to use the solar compass.

Mr. Atwater's perseverance and tenacity of purpose, as well as his technical skill, are illustrated in the following incident related by an old friend and fellow worker, Mr. J. M. Page:

"In 1856 he had a large government contract to extend the public surveys in northern Michigan. The work was found to be very difficult, heavy forests, dense cedar swamps, and worst of all, a chain of lakes, bordered with thickets of cedar, making it next to impossible for him to run the meander lines. In fact, he found it could not be done on land without heavy loss, so he decided to run the exteriors and section lines, setting the meander corners on the lakes that year, and return in the early spring and run the meander lines on the ice. Early in March of 1857 he returned from Vermont with a party to complete his work. There were four of us, and our first experience was to go a hundred and fifty miles north from Newago, Mich., through dense forest, on snow shoes, each carrying a pack of seventy-five pounds. When we finally reached the work, we found the lakes covered with a solid sheet of ice, but ever it, four to twelve inches of water caused by a recent thaw. That was when our real trouble began. We, of course, had to run our lines on the ice; and there was no time to lose, as spring was at hand. When it came to taking readings in ice-water ten or twelve hours a day and then camping in three to five feet of snow at night; there seemed an end to ordinary human endurance; so at the end of the first week two sturdy men declared they could not stand it and quit. The result was that Mr. Atwater and I completed the work alone before the ice broke up. How his other men could desert him in such a crisis is more than I can see. His influence, instruction and advice shaped my whole career and life. He was my best friend and just such a friend as a young man needs when his character is being formed to grapple with the problems of life."

He was for many years prominent in the business circles of the town of Westfield, where he had made his home for the greater part of his long life of ninety years. He was born in the town of Russell, Hampden Co., Mass. His grandfather, Benjamin Atwater, a native of New Haven, but for many years a resident of Cheshire, Conn., was a very successful business man, and for many years in connection with large farming interests kept the Cheshire Inn. Through exceptional business ability and a natural genius for trading he was able to exchange to great advantage his farm products in the city of New Haven for various things necessary in the running of a public house. This trait of ability to trade was apparently inherited from his grandfather, Jonathan, who as we know was called at the height of his business career in New Haven, one of the "merchant princes." Thus it would seem that the great grandchild, Leonard, came naturally by his talents as trader and business man. At the age of sixteen we find him beginning his business career, previous to which time all opportunities of an education had been obtained at the district school and Wilbraham Academy. From 1840 when he made his first business trip to Ohio, in the interests of the American Whip Co., until 1898, when he retired from active business with but few intermissions, which might properly be called vacations, he was an untiring and indefatigable worker. His success during this period was so marked that he is recorded in the town history, as being one of the most successful of the business men of his day and generation. In the prime of life Mr Atwater was of medium height. He had dark hair, sparkling black eyes, and a very pleasing address in conversation. He was a great story teller, and withal a very agreeable person to meet.

543. Susan, dau. of John, and second wife, Lucy Davis (dau. of Nathan Davis, of Revolutionary fame) was born 1810; m. Gordon Gillett. She d. at the age of 95 in Kenosha, Wis., June 15, 1905. Two daughters and one son survived their mother. When she was over 80 she took a trip east in company with her husband and a daughter who was a teacher in Chicago. Among other places they visited the national capitol—and at the Washington monument (she was a little woman, and spry as a cricket) she said, although she could have walked up all right, she knew it would be too much for Mr. Gillett and Ann—so she took the elevator.

Susan, "Original Daughter" and member of the local chapter, D. A. R. of Kenosha, and also honored with a membership in the D. A. R. state chapter of Wisconsin.

544. Sarah Ball, dau. of John, b. Sept. 4, 1821; m. Alfred Ward and spent her married life in Oshkosh, Wis. In these days when every one is knitting for our soldiers in France it is interesting to learn that little Sarah Atwater finished knitting her first pair of stockings when she was five years old. During the later years of her life the D. A. R. did much for her comfort and pleasure. In 1902 they gave a reception in honor of her 81st birthday—Mrs. Sarah Atwater Ward, "who is a distinguished member of the chapter in that her father was a soldier in the Revolutionary War." Mrs. Ward responded to the toast in the following words: "I thank you, one and all, for the pleasure of this birthday anniversary. I could talk a long time and say so little, but I want to thank every one and say that I feel that when this chapter comes before the great white throne, the Lord will say to its daughters, "Come ye blessed of my father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. For she was ahungered and ye gave her meat, she was athirst and ye gave her drink; a stranger and ye took her in; sick and ye visited her and inasmuch as ye did it unto her, one of the least of my people, ye did it unto me." She was presented with a bouquet of 81 asters and at the supper following she cut the cake which was decorated with 81 candles, each of which was tied with a tri-colored ribbon. In 1907 a dinner was given Mrs. Sarah B. Atwater Ward, who had the distinction of being one of the few original Daughters of the American Revolution in the state of Wisconsin to celebrate her 86th birthday, although she was the oldest person at the table, none of the guest enjoyed the event more keenly than she, and the wit of none sparkled more brightly. Except for deafness she was equal physically, to the average woman of many years her junior. She celebrated her 90th birthday in 1911 by attending in the North park the unveiling of the bronze statue of the first president of the United States. "An interesting feature of the reception was the presence of an original daughter of the American Revolution, Mrs. Sarah Atwater Ward, whose father fought in the Revolutionary War, and who recollects many incidents and war stories which her father used to tell." She d. April 3, 1917, at the age of 96 years. Mrs. Ward had one daughter, Helen m. —Flanders. Her great grandson is Halbert Raymond Ward Young.

547. Richard Newman, son of John, m. Evelyn Augusta Babbitt; b. July 23, 1826; she d. Sept. 12, 1912. He was drowned in Cayuga Lake in 1888. They lived in Ledyard, N.Y.

548. Lewis, son of John, m. Ann Price; (2) Cornelia Swift. He d. at his home in Manchester, Iowa, Sept. 17, 1896. He engaged in business for several years in Ithaca, N. Y. In 1869 he removed to Iowa where he had large landed investments. In 1873 he entered upon the drug business with his son Frank, who was an experienced druggist, as partner. This continued until a few years before his death, when he withdrew. Always an active, energetic, upright business man, he had a well earned name for unflinching honesty and fair dealing which made him a much honored citizen. His four children—three daughters and one son, were all born in Cayuga Co., N. Y., by his first marriage and were: Mrs. Mary Williams of Ithaca, N. Y. Husband dead; two married daughters.

In Vol. I. of the Atwater History occurs a slight mistake. It was the second daughter, Eliza Southworth, born 1845, who died at her father's home in Manchester, Iowa, Nov. 23, 1889. She had been a great sufferer for many years. It was the next daughter, Mrs. Cornelia Atwater Kelsey, who died in Gainsville, Ala., where she had been about two months hoping to be benefited by a warmer climate, but tuberculosis was too deeply seated. Her body was brought back to Manchester for interment. She left one little daughter, Susan. Frank J. Atwater, b. at Northville, Cayuga Co., N. Y., July 9, 1850; m. April 9, 1873, Ada Corning; died at Manchester, Iowa, Aug., 1898. He was a natural business man, successful and prosperous, with genuine executive ability, courteous in manner, generous to those in need—a member of the Congregational church. One to be greatly missed in a community. His wife, Ada Corning, and son, Lewis Corning, survived him.

549. Samuel, son of John; m. April 24, 1851, Charlotte Sarah Carter. He d. Jan. 10, 1894. About 1864 he settled in Newark, N. J. She d. May 29, 1909.

550. John, son of John; m. in Angelica, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1873, Eliza Starr, dau. of J. C. Arnold and Sophia L. Starr, b. June 19, 1844. He was a grocer and lived at Newark, N. J. He d. at Angelica, N. Y., Nov. 9, 1904. The following is cut from the Angelica Advocate:

Mr. Atwater came from Connecticut ancestry of several colonial generations. His father having moved to Genoa, Cayuga Co., N. Y., he himself was born there May 29, 1826; and there upon his father's farm were spent his boyhood days. The not unusual apprenticeship in the village store, was followed by the management of a department in a large dry goods house in Rochester. Travel through the west, in the old time stage coach and a short land-office experience gave a fund of recollections for a lifetime. Returning east to Ithaca, N. Y., he with an esthetic taste, no less than as a business enterprise, undertook and acquired the art of photography. He came to Angelica in 1863 and opened a photograph gallery. For several years he continued the business which because of its excellence was large and satisfactory.

During those years his advice and aid was often sought and freely given in various village improvements. He was made village trustee, president of the board, and street commissioner. In all these positions his taste and ability were exercised in a manner that met with general approval. The streets—all the streets—were brought from mud and dust to a suggestion of macadam, the approaches to the village were made better and safer; obstructive fences were leveled as preventive of winter drifts; sidewalks were graded and maintained as never before. The park was cared for until it was the pride of every resident and admiration of all who came. And at the annual town meeting a strict accounting was rendered; old unsettled bills were paid; and to the general surprise taxes were not increased. The County Agricultural Society had met with repeated reverses until there were thoughts of abandoning it altogether. Mr. Atwater was prevailed upon to take the secretaryship and reorganize the fair on a larger and more satisfactory plan. In 1882 he engaged with his elder brother Samuel, since deceased, in the grocery business of Atwater & Carter, Newark, N. J. While still retaining his residence in Angelica, the most of his time was spent in Newark until about two years ago, when he disconnected himself from business and returned permanently to Angelica. His last illness was brief; a fall on the frosty walk, the resulting shock to his entire nervous system, a two weeks' struggle for the mastery, a peaceful shortening of the breath, and life was closed.

Mr. Atwater was married Oct. 1, 1873, to Miss Eliza Starr Arnold. Mrs. Atwater and the one daughter, Sophia L., remain at the old family home. Mrs. Susan Gillett of Kenosha, Wis., and Mrs. Sarah Ward of Oskosh, Wis., also survive him.

Mr. Atwater was naturally retiring and unassuming, dignified yet genial, having a memory well stored with reminiscences of the past and a pleasant faculty of bringing these reminiscences to the enlivenment of the present. To the last his erect bearing and neat appearance as he walked the street were eagerly noticeable and quite in contrast with many of the younger men around him.

The Quaker of the olden time,
How calm and firm and true;
Unspotted by its wrong and crime,
He walked the dark earth thro.

Francis Atwater, 41 Dwight St., New Haven, Conn.:

My dear Mr. Atwater:

It appears that I gave you an incorrect name for my mother's maiden name. Her name was Clora M. Collester. She was born January 7, 1858, in Wayne County, Michigan. My father's full name was Arthur Edison Atwater. He was born at Kalamazoo, Kalamazoo County, Michigan, April 3, 1858, and died at Hopkins, Allegan County, Michigan, January 18, 1884, being twenty-five years, nine months and fifteen days old at time of death. Father and mother were married at Wayland, Allegan County, Michigan, November 3, 1878.

I, LaVerne Nathan Atwater, was born at Hopkins, Allegan County, Michigan, February 13, 1883. I was married to Susa L. Mohler, at Muskegon Heights, Muskegon County, Michigan, on June 27, 1905. She is the daughter of Richard Mohler and was born on June 2, 1881, at Sterling, Illinois. We have one son, Russell LaVerne Atwater, born at Grand Rapids, Michigan, on October 14, 1910.

I am not sure as to whether or not you have obtained a complete data on Andrew Lewis Atwater, brother of Arthur. All the additional information I could obtain was that he was born April 8, 1853, somewhere in Ohio, but could not learn the date of death. This is all the additional information I have on hand now. If I can assist you any farther at this time, please command me.

LAVERNE N. ATWATER.

They are both buried in Versailles cemetery at McKeesport, Pa. Had 5 chil. The Atwaters were among the very first settlers of McKeesport and the family is still represented there. From a book entitled "First One Hundred Years of McKeesport, 1794-1894," I have gathered that Asaph Atwater was the third schoolmaster in the town where the earliest obtainable record of school teaching shows that the profession was engaged in the year 1816, long before a school house had been erected. Asaph Atwater taught subsequent to the year 1831. To quote the book:

"Before the erection of a school building in town, the old timers' ideas were generally taught to shoot in a country school house, about a quarter of a mile south of the present city limits, near where Christy Park begins. The house was built of logs, one log being left out of each side and the space thus formed being filled in with 8x10 glass to afford the necessary light. Asaph Atwater, afterward burgess of the town, was the schoolmaster and he ruled the youngsters with an iron hand; and be it said to his credit, he taught them something."

This same book also records the fact that the Atwaters were active in politics for it shows that Asaph Atwater was burgess (12th) of the town in the year 1853, while William Atwater was also burgess in the year 1865.

The death of his father when he was eleven years old, led him to seek employment, and after a year or two of private schooling in North Guilford and Branford, he became a clerk in Mr. Murdock's dry goods store in New Haven, Conn. An opportunity was offered him to become a clerk for Baldwin, Kent & Co., a wholesale dry goods house in Richmond, Va., and he accepted, going by way of a schooner from New York. In a few years he returned to New York as a resident partner, doing the buying and other responsible duties. He was a conservative and yet a progressive man with large business interests, unostentatious and untiring in his promotion of great enterprises, but commercial and religious. Removing to Springfield, Mass., he was the originator of the Glasgow Mills, at South Hadley Falls, for the manufacture of ginghams; also the Springfield street railroad which he founded and supported during the trying years of its beginning and was also closely identified with the Memorial church in that city, in fact, he and Dr. J. G. Holland may be said to be its founders. His friendships were strong and tender and he was broad in his religious views and much given to hospitality and especially fond of entertaining clergymen. Mr. Atwater owned a magnificent estate of several hundred acres in Springfield which he called Rockrimmon, on which he erected a fine mansion on its highest point. He improved the surroundings in walks and drives, setting out thousands of trees, allowing the shrubs and vines to grow undisturbed. The situation is remarkable for the grand, sweeping view it affords of the valley, bounded by Mt. Tom on the north and the Blandford Hills on the west. The beautiful ravines are another feature, only a small portion being level ground. The mansion stands 130 feet above the Connecticut river. At the bottom of the 90-foot terrace lies Brightwood, the river below winding its way down the valley like a ribbon of silver and lends a charming setting to the vast spread of hills and meadow lands dotted here and there by houses and farm buildings. Here Mr. Atwater spent his declining years amid one of the most picturesque natural parks, every tree and shrub being admired and landscape view adored.

DRIVEWAY IN "ROCKRIMMON" ESTATE."

754. David Fisher, son of Charles, m. in Sharon, Conn., Sept. 14, 1848, Sarah A. Sears, a lineal descendant of Gov. Bradford and daughter of Dr. John and Almira (Gould) Sears of Sharon; b. June 5, 1828; d. Feb. 13, 1910. He d. May 2, 1916, in Springfield, Mass. Dr. Atwater was born at North Branford, Conn., the third son of Rev. Charles Atwater, a graduate of Yale in the class of 1805; the latter studied theology under the first Dr. Timothy Dwight, Yale, 1769, was ordained to the ministry and installed in the Congregational Church on March 1, 1809. Dr. Atwater entered Yale in 1835, during the important period in the history of the college, when Dr. Jeremiah Day, Yale, 1795, held the president's office. The doctor was justly proud of '39, for the class roll contains many notable names, among them United States Senator Dawes of Massachusetts, Prof. Josiah D. Whitney of Harvard, Charles Astor Bristed, '39s leading man of letters and founder of the "Bristed scholarship," Gen. Henry R. Jackson, brigadier general in Hood's army and United States minister to Mexico, James O. Putnam, chancellor of the University of Buffalo and United States minister to Belgium, and Prof. Enoch Fitch Burr of Amherst College.

The doctor's memories of Yale College of the early half of the 19th century dated back to the time when the entrance examinations were conducted orally from the gallery of the chapel and when tinder and flint were used to start fires and lights. At that time, too, Prof. Benjamin Silliman was discussing the development of the steamship, holding that it was impossible to build one which could cross the Atlantic, and mail came once a day by stage coach from New York. The great secret society, "Skull and Bones," had even then been organized, but Dr. Atwater saw many other important Yale institutions organized.

EARLY MEMORIES.

After graduating from Yale in the class of '39, Dr. Atwater spent two years in the study of medicine, during part of which time he served as assistant physician at Bellevue Hospital, New York. He received his degree from Yale Medical School in 1842. Among his memories of that year was a banquet in New York, given by the mayor in honor of Charles Dickens, then making his first visit to this country. At the end of a year Dr. Atwater opened an office in Brooklyn, where he successfully practiced his profession for twelve years. During most of that time he was health physician to the city, and for a year served on the Board of Aldermen there. During the cholera epidemic of 1848 he had charge of the insane hospital at Flatbush. He used to recall meeting Fr. Mathew, the famous Irish temperance leader, with real pleasure. The meeting was in Brooklyn and he was introduced to the great man by the mayor and Dr. Atwater had the pleasure of driving his new acquaintance to St. Patrick's Cathedral.

During the active life in Brooklyn the doctor served as surgeon of the 64th Regiment, New York State Infantry. He was a charter member of American Medical Association and of the Church of the Pilgrims and for many years had been the only living charter member of the church. His name is also among those of the original members of the New England Society and the Society for the Improvement of the Poor of Brooklyn. When he left Brooklyn he gave up his profession but not his interest in it or its members.

On account of impaired health the doctor went to Cleveland, O., in 1853, but returned in a few years to settle in Bridgeport, Conn. While there he served as a director both of the Bridgeport National Bank and the Public Library.

PREDICTIONS THAT FAILED.

Dr. Atwater remembers distinctly hearing his eminent professor, Benjamin Silliman of the class of 1796, speak with feeling because of the great possibilities of danger through carelessness should friction matches ever come into common use. One day he said in class that steamships never could be built capable of crossing the ocean safely, for even if they could be built large enough for making regular trips, he said that they would not be practical, for he could not conceive of any way in which the walking beams could be covered so as to prevent the ocean waves from washing over and down into the engine room. It should be remembered that only sidewheelers were used in those days.

Students of Yale in that olden time did not enjoy the long vacations that they do now. The long vacation of six weeks began on the third Wednesday of August, following the commencement. These exercises took place in the old Center church and lasted from 9 to 12 o'clock in the morning and from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

PROTEST AGAINST RAILROAD.

The only mail from New York came each day by stage and the recollections of the days of stage coaches recalled to Dr. Atwater the seeing of placards on conspicuous trees about the New Haven green urging public-spirited citizens to attend a mass meeting to protest on account of certain injury to the merchants and liverymen of New Haven if the proposed railroad between Hartford and New Haven should be built. The New Haven and Northampton canal was another means of transportation for freight and passengers.

Brawls between "town and gown" were not infrequent. It was customary for the freshman class to choose the largest and strongest man in the class as its leader. He was given the title of "Bully," and his attendant, the smallest fellow, was chosen as his companion.

For many years Dr. Atwater, in spite of his advanced age, was to be seen almost daily on long walks and in the reading room of the City Library, but later he was satisfied with walking about his house and grounds and still enjoyed reading, although at home. His faculties were remarkably well preserved, his mind was clear and he could both hear and see as well as a man of much younger years. He took an active interest in the current happenings and news of the day. For many years the doctor was a member and active worker of South Congregational Church and he was a constant attendant at the services.

Dr. Atwater lived for some time in Atwater Road, near the estate of his brother, the late George M. Atwater, who owned the beautiful Rockrimmon estate in Brightwood near the Chicopee line, but later he moved to Maple street, where he had since lived.

He left public bequests to the Northfield schools, $10,000; Springfield Home for Friendless Women and Children, for its endowment fund, the income only to be used for the objects of the corporation, $1,000; American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, $10,000; Congregational Home Missionary Society, $10,000; Congregational Ministerial Aid Society, $5,000.

JAMES CHAPLIN ATWATER, No. 755.

755. James Chaplin, son of Charles, m. Oct. 16, 1845, Christine S., dau. of Harvey Spencer; b. Mar. 11, 1824; d. Mar. 1, 1894. No children. At the age of sixteen years he entered the dry goods store of Mr. Law in New Haven, Conn. A year later he entered the employ of Lathrop Van Duser & Co., of Richmond, Va., where he remained two years, when he obtained a position with Kent, Kendall & Atwater. Returning to New York in 1842, he went into business for himself, becoming a member of the firm of Gould & Atwater, afterwards Atwater, Gould & Co., they having gone into liquidation, he was one of the firm of Atwater, Knapp & Woodruff—McCurdy, Aldrich & Spence, succeeded by Lew Harriman & Co., and Collins, Atwater & Whiting. He d. Nov. 12, 1911. His estate inventoried nearly $1,500,000. In his will $10,000 was left to erect a memorial monument to his father at North Branford, Conn., where the latter settled.

To his brother, Dr. David F. Atwater, of Springfield, Mass., Mr. Atwater, left all his books and pictures and household furniture, and also an undivided one-half interest in the Sherman farm in the town of Chicopee Falls, Mass.; also, all interest in the Glasgow Manufacturing company and the Hampshire Paper company, both of South Hadley Falls, Mass.

Another brother, George M., and his wife, Harriette B., $20,000 each, and their two daughters, Mrs. George Walter Green and Mrs. Albert Weaver, each $20,000. Also, to his brother, David F., and wife, Sarah S., and their two children $20,000.

In addition to a number of charitable and public bequests, Mr. Atwater left more than $150,000 to other relatives, and to the late Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs of Brooklyn, he left $5,000, "In loving remembrance of my beloved pastor." The total value of the estate was $1,680,000, and the residuary was left to his surviving brothers.

Mr. Atwater's father was ill in bed with double pneumonia, and was carried to a neighbor's house, but expired in a few hours. Of his mother he says she was fairly educated, could paint and draw, was a good piano player and her writing was like copper-plate. Mr. Atwater visited his uncle, Phineas, at Norfolk, N. Y., when seven years old. He remembers often asking his grandfather to see the scar in his breast when he was laid low by a British bullet when New Haven was attacked. He has been an educator since sixteen years old, and has been superintendent of public instruction in his county. The only surviving child is

The following from the report of the United States Life Saving Service is supposed to relate to Lewis Edwin Atwater, No. 1384:

The Corinthian was a ninety-four ton gasolene schooner, carrying a crew of twelve men, including her captain, L. E. Atwater, and hailing from Eureka, Cal. The disaster, which involved the loss of two members of the crew, occurred on June 11, 1906, the schooner having stranded at about 6 p. m. of that day on the western side of the peninsula separating Humboldt Bay from the ocean, two or three hundred yards off shore and three miles northward of the Humboldt Bay life saving station.

Nine trips with the buoy brought in eight men without mishap, the buoy having been hauled in empty once through a misunderstanding of signals. Only the captain now remained on board. The darkness had since the arrival of the station crew become so great that objects on the ship could not be made out from the shore, and rescue operations had to be carried on altogether by signals. When the buoy came back empty it was again quickly sent out, but while the men on the beach stood waiting for the word to haul in the hawser parted and the whip-line also came in, parted and without the tailblock. Four men were dispatched for another shotline, a whipline and shots. While waiting for the extra material those who had remained abreast of the wreck cleared up the tangle of hawser, tackle and whipline under the keeper's direction and made everything ready for sending out another line. The fourth shot carried the line across the vessel's springstay. After several attempts Captain Atwater got the tailblock aboard and secured it, and the breeches buoy was then hauled out without the hawser and with the traveller block detached. The captain got into the buoy and gave the signal to pull away; but in crossing the rail he was swept out and thrown headlong into the surf. Luckily before the seas could wash him away from the vessel he swam around to the schooner's bow and got hold of the bobstay, to which fortunate circumstance he doubtless owed his life.

The keeper did not suspect that anything had gone wrong with Captain Atwater until the buoy had been hauled in empty. As he had distinctly heard the captain's signal he judged that he had placed himself in the buoy all right but that accident had befallen him after leaving ship. This meant that he was somewhere overboard. The buoy was sent out again, however, and McLean and Surfmén Hunt and Nickerson followed it on the heels of an outgoing wave. McLean was first to the schooner, and located Atwater by the sound of his voice. McLean quickly caught up a bight of the whipline that swept within reach and dextrously swung it to the man on the bobstay. The latter fastened the line around his arm and let go the bobstay, and McLean shouted to those on the beach to haul in. By this time the two surfmen had reached the spot where McLean stood, and all three of the rescuers, knowing that they could not retreat quick enough to escape an incoming sea laid hold of the line. They were none too soon. In another moment a wall of water rushed upon them, bore them down, buried them and with relentless force flung them shoreward. In the course of their journey they were ruthlessly beaten against floating timbers and other wreckage which the sea had torn from the schooner, but through it all they clung desperately to the line, McLean and the surfmen in a bunch and Captain Atwater a few feet further along behind. When the call came to haul in the men on the beach bent to the work with a will, and soon the four men were pulled out of the water "like so many fish hooked through the gills," as Keeper Hennig expresses it in his report of the wreck.

Atwater was given by his brother, Henry H. Atwater: "My brother, Edgar, who was in the United States Military Telegraph Service and stationed at Lebanon Junction, Tenn., was called up one day on the wire, as he supposed by his friend, Bennett, the operator stationed at Lebanon, who asked him to come down and spend the Fourth with him. Upon taking the train he found he had been tricked by the Confederate operator, Ellsworth, connected with Morgan's Guerillas, who had cut the wires and was talking in place of Bennett. The train my brother was on was wrecked and fired upon and he was taken prisoner. Upon the sudden appearance of some cavalry, however, who were on the lookout for Guerillas in the neighborhood, the enemy fled and my brother made his escape."

ARTHUR ATWATER KENT.

848. Henry Harrison, son of Ambrose, m. April 27, 1863, Mary F., dau. of Hugh and Agnes Farmer McCafferty, of New York, b. in Savannah, Ga., April 27, 1838.

Mr. Atwater was born in Burlington. Vt., on January 13, 1840, and his wife in Savannah, Ga., at about the same time. When only one year old Mrs. Atwater's parents removed to Cuba, where for years her father was engaged in copper mining. In 1854-55 Mr. Atwater studied telegraphy. In 1856 he accepted a position with the Erie Railroad, just after the system of despatching trains by telegraph was first introduced by Chas. Minot, then the general superintendent of that road. In 1860 he moved to Brooklyn, where he met his wife, who had preceded him to the City of Churches by a few years. "How vividly do I recall," says Mr. Atwater, "the great torchlight processions, the election of Abraham Lincoln, the 'rail splitter,' the firing on Fort Sumpter, the first call for 75,000 volunteers, and the leaving of the Fourteenth (Beecher's Boys) for the front. My wife's brother was one of that number."

Mr. and Mrs. Atwater were married on April 27, 1863, at the residence of the bride's uncle, James Craig, in Spring Valley, N. Y. In the fall of that year, learning that the government was in great need of telegraphers, Atwater volunteered his services and was ordered to report forthwith at the War Department, where he was assigned to duty under Gen. Thos. T. Eckert, who afterwards became the head of the great Western Union Telegraph Company. Later he was transferred to the Washington Navy Yard, which was then headquarters of the Potomac Flotilla.

In speaking of these times Mr. Atwater says: "While stationed at the War Department my wife and I made the acquaintance of Congressman Meyer, who invited us to attend one of President Lincoln's levees. I had heard many reports about the plain looks and decidedly awkward appearance of Mr. Lincoln and was, therefore, glad of this opportunity of meeting him and judging for myself. Upon entering the White House we were first presented by Congressman Meyer to Mrs. Lincoln and Gen. Sickles who received with her. Passing into another room we were then presented to the President himself, and I shall never forget my agreeable surprise when, in place of the awkward, uncouth man I had expected to see, we were cordially greeted and shaken hands with by a man of such pleasing, kindly face and courteous manner that he won our hearts at once.

I did not see the President again until I was stationed at the Navy Yard a short time later, when one evening at about 9 or 10 o'clock as I was walking along the wharf, a carriage drove into the yard and several gentlemen got out. This was followed by another carriage from which I was surprised to see the President alight. They had come down at this unusual hour, when the Navy Yard was practically deserted, to demonstrate to the President the practicability of using rockets for signaling, which they were endeavoring to introduce. After several had been sent up showing different colored lights one burst in the air when half way up, a total failure. "Well," remarked Mr. Lincoln in his droll way, "That was small potatoes and few in a hill." How little I thought as he stood there that within a few months and within a few feet of where he then stood I should behold the dead body of his assassin laid out on a monitor, yet such was the case.

When Lincoln was assassinated many telegrams (which later became a part of history) passed through Atwater's hands. Regarding that exciting event, he goes on to say: "On the evening of April 14, 1865, I was in my quarters in the Navy Yard when, between ten and eleven o'clock, I was hurriedly called up by the War Department operator, who informed me that President Lincoln had just been shot in Ford's Theatre. I at once ran to give the news to Commodore Montgomery. His reply was: 'I guess that's a mistake, for I have just come from uptown and heard nothing of it.'"

Things happened fast after that. Intense excitement prevailed throughout Washington, and telegrams were flashed in all directions. The following are a few of those sent and received by me:

War Dept., Washington, D. C.
April 14, 1865, 11:30 P. M.

To Commander Parker, Potomac Flotilla.

An attempt has been made this P. M. to assassinate the President and Secretary of State. The parties may escape or attempt to escape down the Potomac.

(Signed) J. H. TAYLOR,
Chief of Staff.

Navy Yard, Washington, D. C.,
April 14, 1865, 11:35 P. M.

To S. Nickerson, Actg. Vol. Lieut.
St. Inigoes, Md.

Send the fastest vessel you have with the following message to Commander Parker. "An attempt has this evening been made to assassinate the President and Secretary Seward. The President was shot through the head and Secretary Seward had his throat cut in his own house. Both are in a very dangerous condition. No further particulars. There is great excitement here."

(Signed) T. H. EASTMAN,
Lieut. Com. U. S. Potomac Flotilla.

About midnight I received the following from General Eckert:

"Remain on duty all night unless permission is given to close."

Later that night the following telegram was sent:

April 15, 1865, 1 A. M.
To Brig. Gen. Barnes,
Point Lookout, Md.

Stop all vessels going down the river and hold up all persons on them until further orders. Hold all persons leaving Washington.

(Signed) H. W. HALLECK,
Maj. Gen., Chief of Staff.

War Department, Washington, April 15, 1865.

To Commodore Montgomery,
Navy Yard.

If the military authorities arrest the murderer of the President, and take him to the Yard, put him on a monitor and anchor her in the stream, with strong guard on vessel, wharf and in yard. Call on Commandant Marine Corps for guard. Have vessel immediately prepared ready to receive him any hour, day or night with necessary instructions. He will be heavily ironed and so guarded as to prevent escape or injury to himself.

(Signed) GIDEON WELLES,

Secy. Navy.

Booth, after shooting the President, fled down the eastern shore of the Potomac, crossing the Anacostia bridge, but a short distance from my office, where he was met by Harold, his co-conspirator and guide. The road taken was that over which our wire ran to Point Lookout where we kept our rebel prisoners. Upon information telegraphed by our operator from Port Tobacco, picked men were sent down who traced the fugitives across the river to a barn near Port Royal, Va. The barn was set on fire and as Booth emerged he was shot. His body was brought up to the Navy Yard, laid out on a monitor where I saw it, as before mentioned.

The particulars relating to the attempt to assassinate Wm. H. Seward, Secretary of State, are as follows:

About April 6; while riding in his carriage, his horse becoming frightened, ran away. He was thrown from the carriage and his arm and jaw bone were broken. To hold the jaw in place the surgeon had used wires extending down in front of his throat.

At the hour when Booth was carrying out his part of the terrible tragedy, Payne, one of the other conspirators (whose real name was Lewis Thornton Powell) appeared at the residence of Secretary Seward, and, rushing past the guard, flew up the stairs to the room where the Secretary lay ill and endeavored to cut his throat. The wires, however, holding the jaw, also protected his throat, which probably was the means of saving his life. Frederick Seward, the son, in attempting to arrest the flight of Payne, was dangerously, though not mortally, stabbed. Rushing past Miss Seward, Payne made his escape but was subsequently arrested, brought to the Navy Yard, and placed on the monitor (as directed by Secretary Welles in his telegram to Commodore Montgomery, quoted above), and later was executed with the other conspirators.

At the close of the Civil War Mr. Atwater and his family returned to Brooklyn, where they now reside. Their two daughters, Florence I. and Edith R. (the latter married to a distant cousin, Lyman William Atwater) live with them.

On April 27, 1913, Mr. and Mrs. Atwater celebrated their golden wedding, at which time they were the recipients of a number of beautiful gifts from their many friends who were present, together with telegrams and letters of congratulation. Their oldest daughter, Charlotte (Mrs. F. H. Van Dyke) being unable to attend on account of illness, sent the following greeting:

A GOLDEN WEDDING GREETING.

Dear Mamma—

How I wish that we,
In some mysterious way,
Could look back fifty years and see
You on your Wedding Day,
Standing beside a beardless youth,
(My father, did you say?)
And dressed in gown of ample folds,
I think 'twas silvery gray;

And wide poke bonnet just to match
With roses 'neath the brim,
Which vied with blushes on your cheek
Whene'er you looked at him.

The cherry trees were all in bloom,
The birds were singing, too,
And life was opening wide its doors
To Papa, dear, and you.

Fifty years ago! You say
It seems but yesterday,
Yet here are grandsons most as old,
As you were, on that day.

O, may your lives continue long
Upon their peaceful way,
And may you live to bless our boys,
Upon their wedding day.

Lovingly,

LOTTIE.

A GOLDEN WEDDING GREETING.

My dearest Papa—

Can you guess
How much I long to be
On this our proudest, happiest day
With Mamma, dear, and thee;
To wish you both God's greatest gift,
Through many happy years to come,—
And joy and peace forever?

But since I needs must stay at home,
My little gift I'll send,
And fondest love and greetings on Your Wedding Day extend.

The cuff links are a symbol
Of the golden years you've spent,
Linked hand in hand with Mamma
In sweetness and content.

May they link your lives together
Through many more such years.
This is the Greeting I would send
With three resounding cheers!!!

Lovingly,

LOTTIE.

The following is a clipping from an Atlanta newspaper: "The patriarch of Atlanta travelling salesmen would indeed be a proper designation of H. L. Atwater, now eighty years old, with a record behind him of forty years on the road. Mr. Atwater was in active service notwithstanding his advanced age until about a year and a half ago when he received a fall which compelled his retirement. In addition to his ripe old age and his long road service, he has the further distinction of being the first member of the United Commercial Travelers in the south. He joined the order in Denver, Col., soon after it was established. He was, however, traveling from the south at the time.

Mr. Atwater was also first president of the Southern Travelers' Association, an association which the older Atlanta salesmen remember well. He is the proud possessor of a gold headed walking cane which was presented by the Atlanta branch. He was also the second president of the Post B, the Atlanta organization of the Travelers' Protective association.

"When I received my fall and was compelled to quit work," said Mr. Atwater, "I was traveling for the Parker Buggy Company of Franklin, N. C. At various times I have traveled for the Standard Wagon company, F. A. Ames & Co., and the Milburn Wagon company. I was head of the latter's company branch at Atlanta for a number of years. For fifteen years I may say I sold in Atlanta more than 2,500 vehicles a year."

During the civil war Mr. Atwater was a manufacturer of ambulances, knapsacks, scabbards and other warlike equipment for the Confederate army at Columbus, Miss.

"Though I was never in actual service," said Mr. Atwater, I was given the title of 'Captain' by General Forrest himself. I was shoeing horses for a regiment of cavalry once, when the men waiting for their steeds began to play pranks on my force of helpers, interfering with their work. I threatened to report them to the general but this did not cause them to desist. Finally I went to see General Forrest and he detailed twenty men and said, 'Captain Atwater, take these men and go back and put an end to the interference with your work; and at the head of the men I did as I was bid and the roistering ended immediately and the work of shoeing the horses proceeded thenceforth without interruption.'"

Benjamin Leonard, only son of Dennis Hedges, was born on May 13th, 1890, at Red Bank. He was named "Benjamin Leonard" for his two grandfathers, the Rev. Benjamin Ryder of Syracuse, New York, and Leonard Atwater, of Westfield, Massachusetts. He graduated from the Red Bank High School in 1910 and became a clerk in Fairbanks Standard Scale Company, New York City. When President Wilson in the spring of 1916 ordered the National Guard to mobilize in order to protect the Mexican border, he was the first citizen of his home town to enlist. He had previously been a member of Troop B Cavalry. He was made a corporal in Troop B and, with the 1st Squadron, New Jersey Cavalry, was stationed at Douglas, Arizona. Troop B returned home from the border in October, 1916, and shortly after the United States declared war on Germany, was mustered into Federal Service, July 28, 1917. Corporal Atwater was unanimously elected Second Lieutenant of his company and two months later was promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant. During September the Jersey units were moved from Camp Edge to the National Cantonment, Camp McClellan, Anniston, Alabama. Troop B then lost its identity and became a part of the 29th or Blue and Gray Division, 112th Heavy Field Artillery.

Lieutenant Atwater was one of twenty-five especially selected officers sent to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, in January, 1918, to receive training as aeroplane observers and out of this class was one of three to graduate. He was at Mineola, Garden City, Long Island, for two months and was then sent to Selfridge Field, Michigan, to receive additional instruction in aerial gunnery. In July, 1918, he crossed the seas to France. He is widely known in Red Bank and vicinity as a keen sportsman and a daring athlete. He is fond of society and, besides various local clubs, he is a Mason, a member of the Aero Club of America, and one of the original organizers of the Air Service Institute of the United States.

First Lieut. Benjamin L. Atwater, observer, 99th Aero Squadron—For extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-A-St. Georges, on Oct. 5. He started on a photographic mission with Lieutenant Alexander, pilot, over the enemy's lines. Forced back by seven enemy pursuit planes, he determined to complete his mission, and recrossed the line eight minutes later. A large group of enemy pursuit machines again attacked his plane. Disregarding his wound, he operated his machine gun with such effect that the nearest of the enemy planes was put down out of control. Home address, Mrs. Ella C. Atwater, mother, 152 Maple avenue, Red Bank, N. J.—N. Y. Times, Dec. 31, 1918.

Frances Eliza, only daughter of Dennis Hedges, was born at Syracuse, New York, April 4, 1888. She was named for her two grandmothers, Frances Hedges Atwater, of Westfield, Massachusetts, and Eliza Cook Ryder, of Syracuse, New York. She received her education from the Red Bank High School, the Trenton State Normal and Model Schools and the New York Public Library Training School, since when she has held positions of responsibility under circulation department of the New York Public Library, in the publicity and editorial departments of the Frederick A. Stokes Publishing Company and in the editorial department of the World Alliance for International Friendship, of which Dr. Sidney L. Gulick is secretary. Miss Atwater is responsible for all statistical research work and chart illustration embodied in Dr. Gulick's latest publication, "American Democracy and Asiatic Citizenship," (Scribner, 1918). She is given editorial credit for this in the preface to the book.

In April, 1918, Miss Atwater gave up her position as editorial assistant of the World Alliance to engage in active war-work. She served as secretary of the Red Cross Motor Corps in Washington, D. C., for some time, but since her father's death (August 1, 1918) she has been living with her mother in Red Bank.

JAMES BILLINGS ATWATER, M. D., No. 955

RESIDENCE OF JAMES BILLINGS ATWATER.

955. James Billings, son of Leonard, m. May 14, 1885, Lucy Gould Collins. He graduated from the Westfield High School in 1875; received his A. B. degree in 1879 from Williams College, and in 1882, his M. D. degree from the Medical Department of the University of the City of New York. He is a member of the American Medical Association, Massachusetts Medical Society, a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, the surgeon for the New York Central road at Westfield, consulting physician and surgeon to Noble Hospital and Shurtleff Mission, and for the period of the war with Germany, chairman of the Medical Advisory Board for district No. 6. State of Massachusetts.

Dr. Atwater has practiced his profession in the town of Westfield, with the exception of the first three years since his graduation from Medical School, and is practicing at the present time. He is considered one of the best known physicians and surgeons in the town and county and has filled many important positions of trust and responsibility during this period. In personal appearance he resembles his father, Leonard Atwater, with the exception that he is much taller—an Atwater characteristic.

Dr. Atwater has taken a very active interest outside of his profession in the material interests of the town, particularly in that section of the town, in which he resides.

Abingdon, Ill., 7, 24, 18.

Mr. Francis Atwater:

Dear Sir—In reply to your letter for information in regard to the Atwaters, I will give what I can. My father was born in Ohio in 1823 and died in Sept., 1863. I can't give much about his folks. I was born in March, 1850; was married Sept., 1871. Have raised seven children, all married but two. My baby is twentythree years old. He is in the army since last September, stationed at Camp Cody, New Mexico.

THOS. L. ATWATER.

worthy, on her father's side, was a lineal descendant of John Alden, of the Mayflower. On her mother's side she was descended from Major Christopher P. Yates, prominent in the Mohawk Valley during the Revolution). In 1862 he enlisted in Company I, 11th Regiment R. I. Volunteer Infantry and saw active service in Eastern Virginia. From 1863 to 1871 he represented the American Wood Paper Co., of Providence, R. I., at their Royersford, Pa., mill. In 1874 he removed to western New York, living in Palmyra four years and Fairport eight years, and in 1886 settled in Batavia, Genesee county. In 1886 he became connected with the Johnston Harvester Co., of Batavia, N. Y., was elected trustee and treasurer in 1891, vice-president in 1898 and president in 1907, continuing to hold the positions of president and treasurer up to the time of his death, which occurred on September 2, 1910.

1131. Richard Mead, son of Stephen, m. Sept. 30, 1867, Abby Sophia Greene, dau. of Christopher A. and Sarah Ann Chase, b. Dec. 12, 1844. Abby Sophia Greene is a lineal descendant of Roger Williams of Rhode Island. By the death of his father when Richard was ten years old he was obliged to work for his support through school and college life. He graduated from Brown University in 1865, and was elected a trustee of his college in 1878. On leaving college he engaged in the glass manufacturing business in New Jersey and continued there until 1890. In 1890 he retired from the glass business and took his family to Germany where they lived three years. In 1892 Mr. Atwater was appointed secretary and director of the Semet-Solvay Co. of Syracuse, N. Y., and took an active part in the introduction of the By Product Coke Ovens in the United States. In 1893 he was a judge of glass products at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago. In 1900 he left the United States and became the European agent for a large American harvesting machine company, and resided in Paris for six years. In 1904 he attended the meeting of the International Chemical Congress in Berlin, Germany, and was elected an honorary vice-president. In 1906 he retired from business and settled on a large farm at Chadds Ford, Pa., on the site of the Battle of the Brandywine.

Mr. Atwater has had for forty years a summer residence on the New Jersey coast at Sea Isle and has spent his summers there with his family and the families of his children when he was in this country. During the last twelve years he has served as mayor of the city for four years and as commodore of the Sea Isle Yacht Club for eight years. One of his sons and three of his grandsons are in the military, naval and aviation service in the European war. Mr. Atwater in a letter says:

"We have now eighteen grandchildren living, and death has not touched the family since my daughter, Ethelwyn (Mrs. Dr. Cleveland) died in 1900 at the birth of her second child, excepting an infant daughter of my son, Max, born in Bolivia, S. A., at an altitude of 13,000 feet, and unable to sustain life there, died a few days later.

"The 1917 volume speaks of me as residing in Paris. After six years there we came back home and I retired from active business and settled on a large dairy and fruit farm of 500 acres here at Chadds Ford with my son-in-law, Dr. Cleveland, and my daughter, Sophia, who has brought up the children of my daughter Ethelwyn.

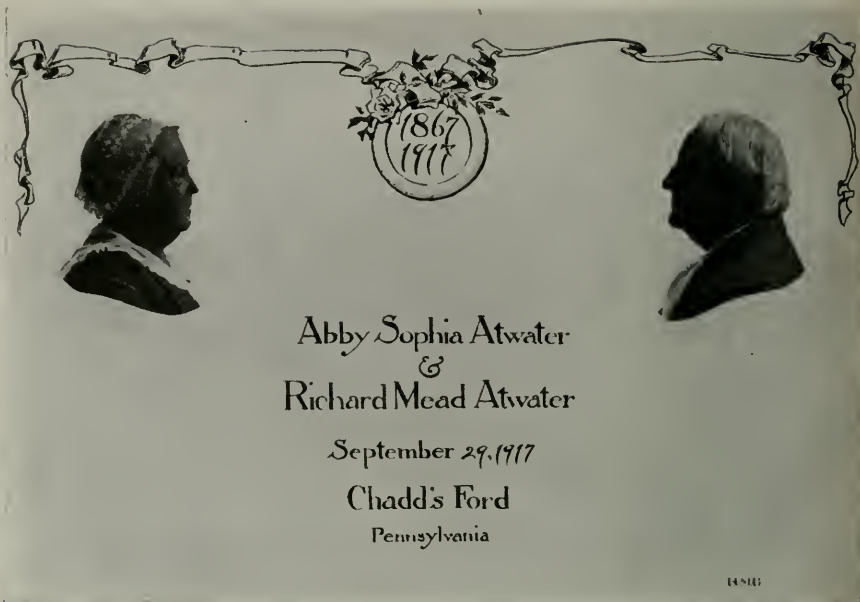

"I was elected honorary vice-president of the International Society of Industrial Chemists at Berlin, Germany, in 1903 and Commodore of the Sea Isle (N. J.) Yacht-Motor Club in 1911. Mrs. Atwater and I are in fine health and unimpaired vigor and we are enjoying our life on a beautiful farm varied with summers at the seashore where we gather about us all of our children and grandchildren for as long as they can be with us. Our life is, and has been, a very happy one and I prize the inheritance of the high moral and physical strain of the Atwaters.

RICHARD MEAD ATWATER.

MRS. RICHARD MEAD ATWATER.

GOLDEN WEDDING INVITATION.

"My son David is a surgeon with the U. S. Army in France.

"My son Christopher Greene is serving the U. S. government as voluntary expert in nitrogen fixation.

"My grandson, Leigh Richmond Brewer is wireless operator on a U. S. destroyer in European waters.

"My grandson, Richard Mead, III., is a flying lieutenant in the British army. He won the Croix de Guerre in France at 16 years.

"My grandson, Arthur H. Cleveland, Jr., is assistant engineer on a U. S. transport and was a survivor when his ship was torpedoed and sunk in the Bay of Biscay."

The fiftieth anniversary of their marriage was celebrated on the 29th of September, 1917. The form of the gifts was unusual.

There was a general feeling among their relatives that the usual golden wedding gifts would be out of place in this time of deep distress, and that the recipients themselves would be much better pleased if the remembrances should take the form of aid to suffering France, where the Atwaters lived for some years and in whose fate they are deeply interested.

The result was an unexpected success and at the close of the wedding breakfast, at which more than fifty guests were assembled, a tray was placed before the bride and a shower of gold pieces fell down upon it, amounting to twelve hundred and fifty dollars, which will be devoted to the upbuilding of devastated France.

Harmon from Cleveland, O.; Belle, from Sioux City; Fannie, from Minneapolis, and five of our grandchildren. Albert Alling, the eldest son, was working as engineer for the government at Camp Sherman, and could not get away as they were in a great rush. We gave an informal reception in the evening, inviting all our friends to call. The Congregational church and neighbors turned out, about 150, it was estimated. Our minister made a nice little speech and presented us with $50.00 in gold from our friends, and we received $35 in gold from our sons and other friends, some of whom were not here; also a gold lined tablespoon, gold cuff buttons, beautiful brooch for me from our daughters, and one dozen cut glass glasses; a large bouquet of beautiful lilies from Eastern Star lodge; a large bouquet of beautiful gladiolas from the ladies of the Ladies' Association of the church. We served ice cream and cake. All claimed to have had a delightful evening. August 23, 1917, the Crete lodge, No. 37, A. F. and A. M., gave Jared (my husband) a reception and banquet, it being the fiftieth anniversary of his becoming a 'Master Mason,' at which all the Masons in this vicinity were present. They had many fine speeches, and a fine time all around. Thsy presented him with an elegant gold headed cane finely engraved. Jared is past excellent high priest of Mount Zion Chapter, No. 17, R. A. M., in which capacity he served three years; is a Sir Knight Templar and Shriner."

1274. Eugene A., son of Myron, m. June 11, 1879, Nellie A., dau. of Leonard Bailey. He was a photographer at St. Louis, Mo.

He was educated at Evanston University, Illinois, taking the ministerial and medical courses, and specializing in chemistry. He was ordained to the ministry of the Methodist church, and labored in that vocation for some years in the state of Indiana.

Later, he became interested in scientific photography, and was the inventor of a dry plate. For many years he rendered capable service in the manufacture of photographic materials, for which work his scientific training made him specially well qualified. He was demonstrator for one of the leading firms in the country for a period of thirteen years, and was also in the service of the United States government, taking photos of the clouds and other weather phenomena in different parts of the country.

It was in June, 1879, that he married Miss Nellie Bailey of Allegan, Michigan. They had but one child, a son, who died, however, when only six months old, in the fall of 1894.

For many years his wife was an invalid, and he traveled a good deal for her health. She died three years ago.

He took a great deal of pleasure in an acquaintance which he formed with the family of General U. S. Grant, with whom he was related, Mr. Atwater's father and General Grant being second cousins. The deceased had visited a number of times in the Grant home, and cherished a deep respect for the noted general and his family.

1276. Lewis Frederick, son of Myron, m. Mar. 9, 1875, Annie Laura Pierce, d. Oct. 28, 1913. Residence Selma, Cal. One dau., Mae, b. Feb. 12, 1876; m. Feb. 12, 1898, E. Howe, of Savoy, Mont., and one son, Myron

Ambition, courage, and a thirst for knowledge that have surmounted a handicap from birth are attributes of M. L. Atwater, the new editor of the Selma Enterprise. There have been three issues of the paper under the new editorship and each issue has brought forth much favorable comment in the community. It will come as a great surprise, however, to many people who have not had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Atwater to learn that the editor has accomplished his success in life despite the fact that he has been blind from birth. His success in life under such circumstances, therefore, makes an interesting story. Atwater was almost a year old, toddling around in his father's Indiana printing office, where he played with the type, when it was definitely discovered that he had been totally deprived of sight from birth. It was evident, though, that he craved knowledge and as soon as he was of school age he went with other children to the grammar school, as this was the only school available for him at that time. There he learned his lessons from hearing others recite, until about the third year, when he was obliged to give that up. He chanced to hear of Helen Keller, and directed inquiries to her about education for the blind. Through her assistance and encouragement he secured blind primers from the Perkins Institute of Boston, and commenced home study. Within three months he had completely mastered his books and began to call for advanced reading. Owing to the fact that his mother was an invalid the greater responsibility of teaching fell upon the father, and thus he was reared in a printing office. When the books for the blind had been exhausted he found pleasure in listening to newspapers, histories, and the works of authors, stowing all away with a wonderful retentive memory. Two years ago he assumed the editorship of the Signal at Atwater, but in keeping with his spirit of reaching, he and his father recently purchased the Enterprise of this city, which is showing strides under his editorship. He gathers his information from discussion and having others read to him, but assumes the full responsibilities of editorials which he writes on an ordinary typewriter in copy remarkably free from error. When not at the editorial desk he revels in music, or accounts of travel. He is very fond of anything pertaining to Egypt and the country of the Nile, and much interested in Roman history. For exercise, he keeps house, having gradually grown into that responsibility because of his mother's ill health, and has shouldered the entire responsibility since her death four years ago.

Before the civil war he had amassed a large fortune, but the devastation swept it away, but being a man of great energy he immediately set to work to regain his losses, and at the time of his death was in comfortable circumstances.

E. B. ATWATER, AS I REMEMBER HIM.

The first time I ever saw Judge E. B. Atwater was when I was a mere boy and he was a man long past life's meridian. It was at the old Methodist Camp Ground, near the village of The Rock, in Upson county, Georgia, where that religious denomination held annual mid-summer revival meetings. Some itinerant preacher had delivered a conscience searching, soul stirring sermon. The religious emotions of the large congregation were stirred to their depths. Sinners were invited to come to the improvised altar for prayer, and they came in numbers. Judge Atwater, or Uncle At, as he was familiarly and affectionately known, was requested to lead the prayer. I shall never forget the occasion. I wish I could remember the prayer. The tall, slightly stooped old man sank to his knees on the wheat straw with which the place was carpeted, towering in this position full head and shoulders above the recumbent figures about him, and prayed for his neighbors and his neighbors' chilären. The vibrant, resonant qualities of his voice carried every word not only back to the seats of the scornful in the rear of the large tabernacle, where I with other boys and girls, awed by the solemnity of the occasion, sat and watched and wondered, but to the little cottages round about where campers, too tired or too indifferent to attend the service, sat in easy chairs. As I remember it, he began his invocation as follows: "O thou all powerful, all wise, all merciful God, our Creator, our Preserver, our Redeemer, to whom be glory and dominion, now and forever." He then addressed Him as the Father to whom he came as a suppliant child, bearing in his heart the burden of the sins of erring friends, and prayed for their conversion. There may have been nothing striking or unusual about the prayer, but it seemed to me that with it there settled over the place an atmosphere of tense religious awe; in the hearts of the hearers there was reverence. I heard him offer public prayer on many occasions after that. But none of them made such an abiding impression on my mind. Hard hearts were touched and tendered there at that old camp meeting place; tears came unbidden to eyes which long had been dry and ploughed down hardened cheeks. The people were powerfully moved by the simple eloquence, the fervor and pathos of an old man's prayer.

I learned to know Judge Atwater afterwards well. He was an old man. I was a youthful lawyer. For some reason he took a fancy to me; retained me by the year to look after his various and complex business affairs; made my office his headquarters.

It is not at all difficult for me to now visualize his form and features. Tall, raw boned, broad shouldered, slightly stooped on account of the weight of years, with furrowed face which in repose had somewhat the saddened expression of Lincoln, yet which could light up with the kindly humor which always sparkled in his eyes, he attracted attention in any crowd. He always carried a long cane and in the winter time wore a plaid shawl. He spurned the conventional cane and carried a veritable walking stick, which he used not only to assist him in walking, but as a means of attracting attention by pounding on the floor with it, or by prodding some one to whom he wished to address his remarks. He also would have used it, and perhaps did on some occasions, as a weapon of offense, for he was of fiery temper, quick to resent an insult but ever ready to forgive.

I think he was of Scotch-Irish descent. I know he had Irish blood in his veins for I have heard him boast of it. But whether it came from the paternal or the maternal side I do not know. He seemed to combine in his nature the frugality of the Scotch with the happy-go-lucky improvidence of the Irishman; the unfaltering integrity of a Scotch covenanter with the freedom from care and love of humor which characterize the children of Erin. He was a great raconteur, and could tell an Irish joke with the inimitable brogue of a son of the old sod.

Born in the state of North Carolina at four o'clock in the morning, he said that he always awakened at that hour.

When a small boy on the North Carolina farm, his father on one occasion took him far out in the woods and when he reached a certain spot cut a hickory switch and threshed him soundly. When the boy asked him why he had punished him he was told that it was because the father's land cornered at that spot and he wanted to impress the place on his memory. Said Judge Atwater, "I believe I could find that corner to-day, even though the forest was cleared and the land in cultivation."

He was a lover of good horses and always kept one that could cover a mile in as quick time as any horse in the community. And his driving was like unto the driving of Jehu. He permitted no one to pass him on the road. If some one essayed to do so, the love of the sport of kings would kindle in the old man's eyes, he would gather the lines in his gauntleted hands, tighten the rein, cluck to his faithful horse, and the unlucky but ambitious driver who thought he would pass would be left far in the rear. The character of the road did not deter him, for he would go over ruts and gullies, hitting only the high places. Many times I have been in the buggy with him when I had to hold on with hands and feet in order not to be thrown out. But he was merciful to his beasts. They were fat and sleek, well fed and well cared for.

By industry and frugality he acquired a competency. A splendid judge of human nature, he would sometimes take chances in business transactions because he thought the moral risk was good when the security was inadequate. I think he was seldom deceived. Said he, "I haven't read many books but have read a great many men."

He was the halest, heartiest, holiest old man I ever knew. Although, as he said, he was living on borrowed time, having passed the three score years and ten allotted to man when I first knew him, yet his faculties were unimpaired and his strength not abated up to the time of his last illness.

When I go to Thomaston, Georgia, as I occasionally do, I visit my old friend's grave in the little cemetery on the crest of the hill. He lies near where the old Methodist church stood—a place selected by him before his death—where for long years he was a constant attendant and faithful worshiper. These pilgrimages do me good for they bring to mind the sterling worth and character of one of the knightliest of men, who by precept and example tried to impress on my youthful mind those lessons of human conduct which made his own life a success, and which I am sure brought their merited reward in that completer, fuller life he now enjoys.

HISTORY OF FRANCIS ATWATER No. 1585.

(Son of Henry, No. 987.)

(Copied from the Meriden (Conn.) Daily Record, May 29, 1913.)

"Francis Atwater, founder and president of The Journal Publishing Co., and a prominent factor in Meriden's business and political development for many years, has decided to retire from his various business interests as rapidly as he can and spend his remaining years in this country and abroad. His health is good and he believes in conserving it by withdrawing from all business activities—which may take five years—and devoting the rest of his life as fancy dictates.

"Mr. Atwater resigned this week from the presidency of The Journal Publishing Co. and as soon as he sells his beautiful residence at the corner of Broad and East Main streets, he will leave for Washington, D. C. He expects to spend his time next winter in appealing to congress for a memorial for Clara Barton, the founder of the Red Cross society, and also in securing from the national legislators belated recognition for his brother, the late Dorence Atwater, who compiled a complete and authentic list of the Union dead when a prisoner at Andersonville. After that Mr. and Mrs. Atwater will become globe trotters, spending most of their time in travel.

"Mr. Atwater's reported retirement caused much surprise to his fellow-citizens. As his reasons for retiring have not been known, a Record reporter interviewed Mr. Atwater on the subject Wednesday afternoon.

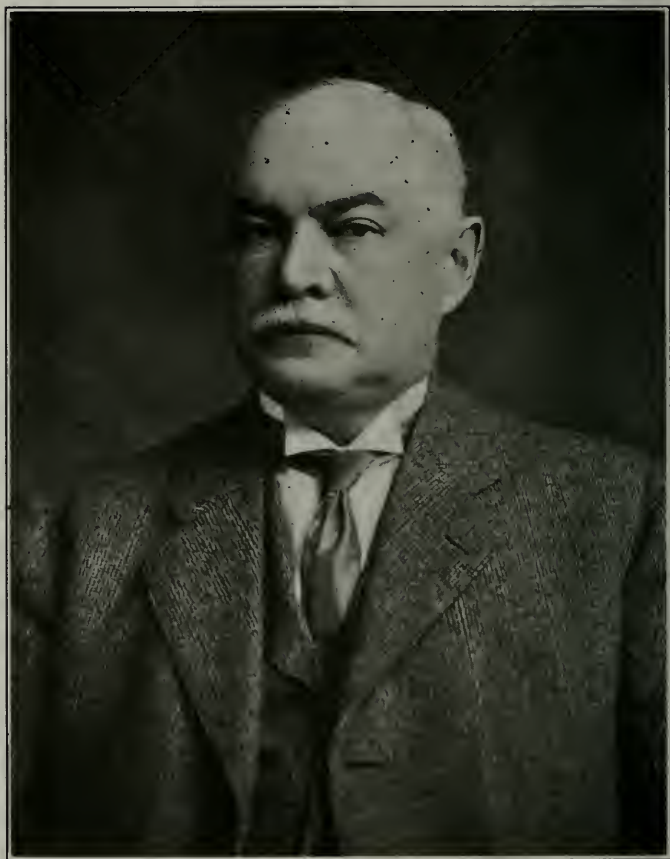

"What are your reasons for retiring?" Mr. Atwater was asked.

MR. ATWATER'S STATEMENT.

" 'You must remember,' he replied, 'I have been in active life since I was eleven and one-half years old, when I commenced work in the Meriden Literary Recorder office, under the late Luther G. Riggs and since then, forty-three years ago, I have been in the harness.

" 'As I am now interested in many things of a public and private nature I believe I should commence to withdraw, fixing each upon a firm foundation while I have health and strength.

" 'I have resigned from the presidency of The Journal Publishing Company of my own free will and have insisted that I shall be released from further service, and have sold to my associates my holdings on their own terms. I felt I could do this without injury to any one, as The Journal as a Meriden institution is in a prosperous condition and in the hands of those who have grown up in its service. Therefore, I feel my guiding hand is no longer needed.

FRANCIS ATWATER, COMPILER OF THREE VOLUMES OF ATWATER HISTORY.

FIVE YEARS' TIME REQUIRED.

“My connection with other Meriden enterprises will cease in rotation, as I can adjust my connection with each. My residence is for sale, and all of my other real estate. This will all take time. Yet this is only a commencement, for outside of Meriden I have become identified with many projects, several of which are more or less dependent on my resources to make them successful. Therefore, I feel if I carry out what is now resting on my shoulders five years will have passed by before my retirement is complete, and by that time I will practically be in Dr. Osler's class.

“Life in Meriden to me has not been monotonous. I have enjoyed every day of it, and, in fact, have wherever fate has placed me.

“I have been a factor, in my time, through The Journal, of advocating every good measure for the benefit of Meriden and have also had the satisfaction of as vigorously opposing in no uncertain terms what I believed was against the town's best interests.

A LITTLE POLITICAL ADVICE.

“In leaving Meriden I feel that I gave the best years of my life to its development and that in no small way were my efforts a success both from a business and a political standpoint. Now that I am a disinterested party, my advice and hope is that the people of Meriden will wake up to the fact that politics in the administration of local affairs is a miserable farce, that they will wipe out the ward heeler, and adopt the commission form of government.’

A MOULDER OF PUBLIC OPINION.

“As a newspaper publisher, Mr. Atwater's influence has been strongly felt in the community, but he has not restricted himself entirely to that particular line of activity. It has always been his ambition to be a pioneer in different things and he has generally satisfied that ambition. Like all public men he has had his enemies, but they have admired him for his fearlessness. Because he liked the combat he was often called upon to take up the cudgels for others. He has realized as does the average newspaperman that a newspaper must take sides on public questions and it was seldom that he personally ever occupied a neutral position. As a moulder of public opinion he is in a class by himself and when he withdraws from the community he will be missed chiefly on this account.

SOME INDIVIDUAL ACHIEVEMENTS.

“Credit is given Mr. Atwater for accomplishing a number of big undertakings which have since contributed to the prosperity and progress of the city of Meriden. As the promoter and later the president of the Meriden-Southington-Lake Compounce Tramway Co., he did the public a great service in extending the trolley lines from Crow Hollow to South-ington center, which opened up the surrounding country, brought business to Meriden and increased traffic. The railway was afterward sold to the Connecticut Light & Power Co.

"When president of the Meriden Board of Trade, the Meriden Firearms Co. was brought to Meriden after a diligent canvass and the raising of the required amount of money. The big industry has been a considerable addition to Meriden's manufacturing interests.

MADE EXPRESS STOP.

"Many citizens will remember that Meriden was nearly obliterated from the railroad map back in 1904. Mr. Atwater wrote a letter to the officials of the New Haven road threatening to appeal to the interstate commerce commission. The express trains that had been passing through Meriden without stopping were ordered to stop.

"Mr. Atwater was one of the chief planners of the Meriden centennial celebration in 1906. The Century of Meriden and the history of the celebration were published by his concern. When a member of the state senate the same year he succeeded, in securing an appropriation of $90,000 for the new state armory, which was a boon to the militiamen of Meriden.

CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER BUILDINGS.

"Two years ago Mr. Atwater became especially interested in a movement to tear down the shacks in the business section and erect modern buildings. The formation of the Silver City Realty Co. was the result. Mr. Atwater hopes to see the company's new block on Colony street started before he leaves Meriden. The Journal Publishing Company's mechanical plant is in the first fireproof building erected in Meriden and the company's new office is in a fireproof building, taking the place of a historic shack.

"The Puritan Trust Co., which was organized and started doing banking business last year, was one of Mr. Atwater's business undertakings. The Meriden, Middletown & Guilford Electric Ry. Co., started in 1909, and not yet completed, is also another. His financial interests in these corporations will conclude as soon as he can sell out. The same is true of the Washington State Colonization Co., of which he is the president.

GENEROUS TO INSTITUTIONS.

"While Mr. Atwater has given liberally of his time and talents to the community in which he has reaped so much success, he has also given generously of his worldly goods to the public and charitable institutions of diversified character. He has been a loyal Meridenite and a real boomer.

RESIDENCE OF FRANCIS ATWATER FROM 1894 TO 1914, LOCATED IN

RESIDENCE OF FRANCIS ATWATER, SINCE 1914, LOCATED IN NEW HAVEN, CONN.

A STRONG POLITICAL FIGURE.

"Mr. Atwater has found politics a congenial field for his surplus energies as he has never had the time or inclination to be idle. He has not been a party man in the strict sense of the word, but the ends to be sought have engaged his attention and support chiefly. As a candidate on the Democratic ticket he was elected to the state senate in 1906. Out of fifteen bills he presented thirteen were passed. As chairman of the committee on woman suffrage he was often heard publicly approving the principle at that time and since. During his campaign for senator he inaugurated a style of campaigning which has been successfully copied. He made an automobile tour of the shops of the city, speaking to the workers at noon meetings and at night addressed the voters at various outdoor points about the district.

COLLECTED THE MILITARY TAX.

"He was town tax collector in 1907-8, and inaugurated the novelty of collecting the military tax instead of leaving it on the books. The collection of the military tax had been a dead issue in other Connecticut communities up to that time. His example encouraged other tax collectors about the state. Now it is not regarded as an impossible task to collect the tax. It was during his administration of this office that Mr. Atwater aroused a lot of antagonism and a Tax Dodgers' association was formed. The Democratic party refused to renominate him and he ran on an independent ticket at the next town election and was defeated by Charles Dexter, Republican.

CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR.

"Promising business reforms in the administration of city affairs, Mr. Atwater entered the contest for the mayoralty as an independent candidate in 1911. He waged a picturesque battle and was defeated.

"During the controversy over the building of the new town hall, Mr. Atwater was one of the chief opponents of the auditorium plan of a building. During the erection of the building he had a court injunction issued.

MANY NEWSPAPER VENTURES.

"Mr. Atwater has shown a lot of enterprise in the newspaper business not alone in Meriden but in other cities. Here is an enumeration of the papers he has been interested in:

"Foreman at 16, Meriden Literary Recorder; founder and publisher of the Windemere Weekly Forum, Wallingford, 1879-80; assistant foreman, Hartford Courant, 1880; manager Red Bluff, (Cal.) Sentinel; founder and publisher of Meriden Sunday News; founded Meriden Daily Journal 1886 and ever since president of The Journal Publishing Company; founded in 1898 Havana Journal, now (Havana Post) first all-American journal in Cuba; bought and sold the New Britain Daily News; bought and sold the Waterbury Daily Republican.

"With writing as his profession it has been a cheerful task for him to write several books, one a history of Plymouth, his birthplace, and also a history of Kent which were published in 1896; and the Atwater history and genealogy in 1901.

A WORKER FOR HUMANITY.

"Mr. Atwater was associated for many years with Clara Barton, the founder of the American National Red Cross society. As a member of the executive committee of the society he labored for many months after the Spanish American war feeding and providing comforts for the thousands of sick and starving reconcentrados around Havana. He was elected president of the Clara Barton Memorial association in 1912, which has for its purpose the erection of a suitable memorial to this great heroine of the Civil, Franco-Prussian and Spanish wars at Washington, D. C."

SINCE RETIREMENT.

After the above publication Mr. Atwater the following year sold his residence in Meriden. With Mrs. Atwater he toured Japan, Manilla and China, and would have made the trip around the world, but the world-wide war interfered. Upon his return he bought a residence in New Haven, Conn., where he has settled within half a mile of the location the first David selected in 1638. Subsequently he participated in the organization of the Broadway Bank and Trust Company and the American Bank and Trust Company of New Haven, the East Hampton Bank and Trust Company, the Wallingford Trust Company and the Torrington Trust Company, and followed this work by compiling the Third Volume of Atwater History, and erecting a large fireproof mercantile building in Meriden, Conn.

LATE DORENCE ATWATER.

HISTORY OF DORENCE ATWATER, No. 1581

(Son of Henry, No. 987.)

(Copied from The Meriden Daily Journal, Meriden, Conn., Monday, May 29, 1911.)

Terryville, Conn., May 28.—The memorial service in commemoration of the late Dorence Atwater, a native of this village and the hero and martyr of Andersonville prison, was held here yesterday. The ceremonies were in charge of Rev. Spencer E. Evans and were very impressive.

The attendance was large, Merriam post, G. A. R., from Meriden being represented nearly one hundred strong, the delegation including members and their wives, while others came from Bristol, Thomaston, Southington, New Britain, Hartford, Bridgeport and other places. The weather was ideal for the occasion.

The first exercises were at the gun memorial erected two or three years ago, on which had been placed a new tablet. Lincoln's famous dedication speech at Gettysburg was read by the principal of the High school, followed by the recital of Oliver Wendell Holmes' poem, "A Hero," by Rev. Mr. Evans. Then the tablet was unveiled by Mrs. W. B. Ells, widow of the late Major Ells, who had a most enviable war record.

From the memorial the services were transferred to the Congregational church where the choir sang appropriate songs and prayers were offered by the pastor. It was expected that Clara Barton, the world's benefactress, would be present to make an address, but owing to illness, was prevented. She, however, sent remarks which were read by Mr. Evans, as follows:

MISS BARTON'S LETTER.

To the Citizens of Terryville, met to commemorate the services of Dorence Atwater:

Friends, Citizens of Terryville and Comrades:

While it is one of the regrets of my life that I cannot be with you today in person, it is yet one of its pleasures that I may, if only even with a few words from my pen, bear testimony to the worth of the occasion that calls you together.

You are met to commemorate the services of one of your own, a lad born among you, a man of the world, and a soldier of his country. Sixty years ago he picked the pebbles and played his boyish pranks upon your streets, all unmindful of the destiny awaiting him.

At sixteen the grim voice of war called him from you, to the service it had assigned him. And what was that service? The glories of the combat? The pride and pomp of armies? Was he to bring back to you the trophies of the victor? Had he slain his hundred enemies? Captured their cities? And amidst the shouts of victory, laid his laurels at your feet, and his grateful country roused by his valor? Was it standing with open arms to welcome back the hero of battle?

Nay, nay, good friends. None of that. In place of these, he brought you a few crumpled sheets of paper, whereon with an arm skeletonized by hunger and the lack of every comfort or need of human life, but the breath that sustained it, he had traced and preserved the names and last earthly record of 13,000 dead comrades left in strange and unknown graves.

And for this, his country opened not its arms to receive him, but its prison doors and drew its bolts behind him.

The hinges of fate may be rusty and slow but they are sure to turn. And to-day, friends and grateful citizens of Terryville, you crowd your streets, with the welcoming throng that lines them to bear testimony to the greatness of his act, not alone the courage, but the philanthropy of the soldier.

Citizens of Terryville, well may you meet to commemorate his deed, for he has written your name with his arm on the imperishable records of history, and linked together, Dorence Atwater, Terryville and Andersonville, go hand in hand adown the historic ages.

You have planted his enduring monument—the iron thwarted gun—beside the streets where he picked the pebbles, and in your hearts you fondly cherish his memory as through the tears you gaze on the draped flags, waving in his honor.

Dorence Atwater is no longer with you. Your bright, prankish boy and faithful soldier lad has gone to his rest.

He leaves to you the memory of a life of honor, and to the history of his country the inseparable linked names, Dorence Atwater, Terryville and Andersonville.

CLARA BARTON.

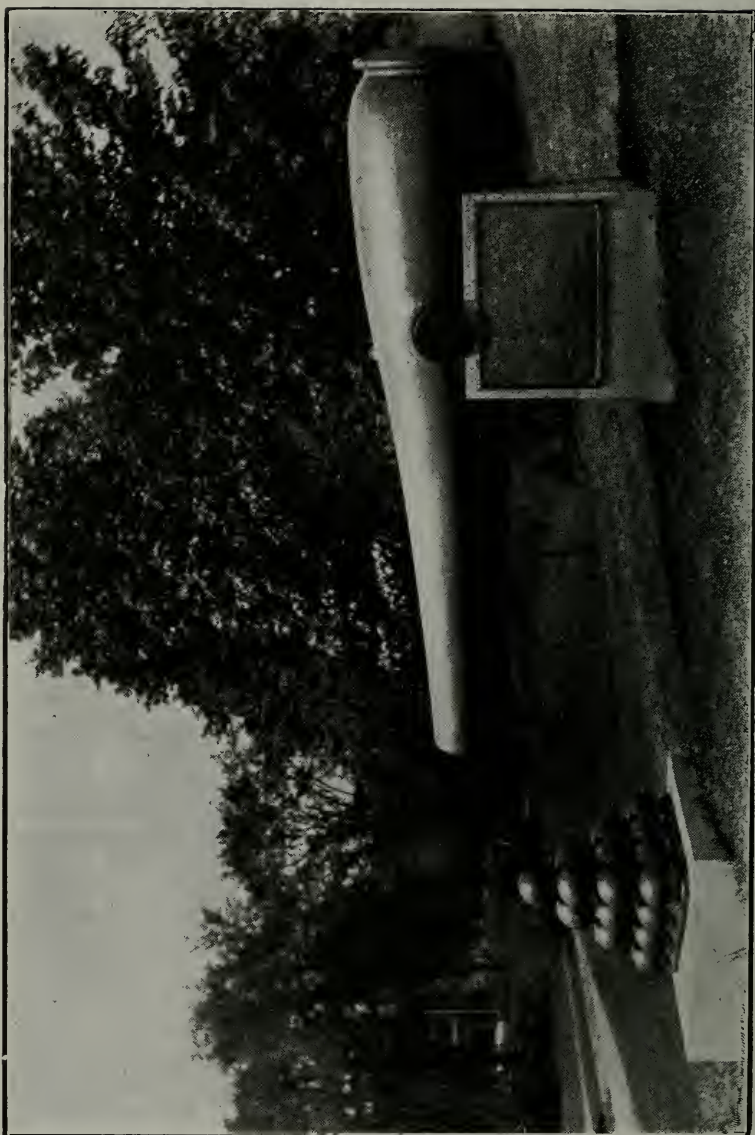

Then was introduced ex-Senator Francis Atwater, of Meriden, a brother of the martyr, who explained it was planned to have the Hon. Joseph Sheldon of New Haven and General E. H. Whittaker, of Washington, D. C., make the principal addresses, but as the infirmities of old age prevented these two from being present, it had fallen to him to present his remarks, which were as follows:

MR. ATWATER'S ADDRESS.

Comrades, Friends and Neighbors of My Childhood:

If you should delve into the history of Plymouth and especially of this village in its early stages, you would find there was one family of sturdy qualities, among many others, who were pioneers in its establishment. I refer to Timothy Atwater, who settled here more than 100 years ago, and from whom all of that name in this part of the town descended. Timothy was a descendant of David Atwater, who came to this country in 1636, and was one of the original signers of the Planters' agreement of New Haven colony. David emigrated with his brother and sister from Lenham in the county of Kent, England, protesting against the persecutions which prevailed at that time against civil and religious liberty. It is claimed of all the counties in England, Kent was first inhabited, first civilized, first christianized and never conquered. Years later there came to Plymouth the family of Benjamin Fenn, whose ancestor was another Benjamin, who was also an emigrant pioneer who became the first magistrate of New Haven colony. I mention these facts because they are pertinent and to show that a descendant of such families is imbued with courage and valor.

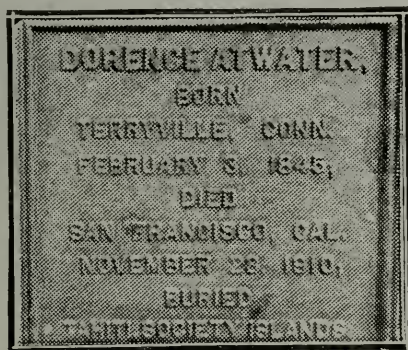

Descending from Timothy Atwater was a son Wyllys, a life-long resident of this town, who in turn was the father of Henry who married

DORENCE ATWATER MEMORIAL GUN AT TERRYVILLE, CONN.

October 1, 1837, Catherine, daughter of Benjamin Fenn. They were honest, God-fearing people, who spent their lives here, and whose remains are interred in your cemetery. Their third child was Dorence, born February 3, 1845, the subject which brings this gathering together to-day to pay its last tributes and respects to his memory. It was here he spent his boyhood days, and had his strength permitted, just before his death he would have crossed the country to have gazed fondly and lovingly on the old village where he had spent so many happy years.

Like most lads he was mischievous and full of boyish pranks, but at the same time was so manly in his ways that he was a favorite among both old and young. He was born on a farm in the northern part of the town where his early childhood was spent. Later he lived in what you are now pleased to call your hotel. From there he attended your public school where he acquired, besides other useful knowledge, a penmanship that was individual and of such a character that it attracted the attention of all who saw it. With him it was truly a mastered art. To it probably can be attributed the great service he was to render his country and also the hardships, privations and persecutions he was to endure. Then he became a clerk in the village store, where when he was not engaged in doing up groceries, he was plotting practical jokes to play on anyone who might happen along. Generally he escaped any serious chastisement, due to the fact that he kept out of sight until the consequences of his mischief had blown over. Not so on one occasion, it is told. He and his chum (who is now James Terry of Hartford) thought to have some fun with Shelton Smith, who at that time was the village fiddler. They called at Mr. Smith's house, rapped on the door, and when the gentleman appeared, asked if he would not play for them. He promptly acquiesced but not in the way that they anticipated. Mr. Smith told the boys to wait a minute, when he appeared with a long whip and before they could escape, had given their legs a good lacing.

While still a boy he went to Branford, this state, to work in a grocery store. It was while there that Fort Sumter was fired upon and President Lincoln called for volunteer soldiers. Dorence tried to prevail upon his parents to give their consent to his enlisting at once but they were reluctant to do so. However, on August 1, 1861, he enlisted and joined the First squadron of cavalry, Connecticut volunteers, just sixteen and one-half years old. His country was in danger and in his young enthusiasm he believed it was his duty to help defend it. Perhaps he was justified in the lie he told when he stated to the recruiting officer he was eighteen years old, but being large of stature his word was not questioned. So he left for the war with tears streaming down his mother's face, but with her benediction. It was cruel destiny to her. She watched and prayed for his safe return, with only now and then a word that he was doing his duty and was well, but she was to be spared the terrible news that he had been captured and later taken to Andersonville, because she was stricken down and died in May, 1863.

When Dorence left Connecticut he was transferred to the Harris Light Cavalry of New York. He participated in the hard campaigning and sharp battles that commanded experience and was captured near Boonsboro, Md., while carrying dispatches from General E. H. Whittaker, still living in Washington, D. C., to General Kilpatrick. The cavalry was in the rear of the rebel army that was defeated at Gettysburg, and it was doing its best to prevent Lee's escape across the Potomac river. The dispatch may have been a hasty pencil note or possibly an oral message giving information of the enemy's movements. General Whittaker's troops were not properly supplied by Gen. Meade and twice were in great danger of destruction by the enemy who was all around them. Knowing that his errand was a perilous one, Dorence never faltered but started across the rebel's country hoping to escape capture, but when surrounded was obliged to submit to be taken a prisoner of war.

He was marched off to Belle Isle, and through the intervention of a friend he was transferred to Richmond where he was forced to walk barefooted and only covered with trousers and shirt across the city on a bleak December day. There he was put in charge of supplies sent from the north to be distributed to Federal prisoners. He found one of the Confederate officers purloining the goods and was instrumental in getting him discharged. The new prison at Andersonville, Ga., had just been opened. Four hundred prisoners were being taken each day from Belle Isle to that prison. They were brought through Richmond. If the full quota for any reason did not number 400 when it reached the city enough more were added to supply the full allotment. Thus Dorence found himself one night unceremoniously routed out to be taken to this, the most loathsome of all the rebel prisons, where he was to spend months in sickness and starvation, yet not in idleness entirely.

It was here his wonderful and individual penmanship in some manner became known to General Wirz, the prison keeper. He was invited to keep the register of deaths of his fellow prisoners, being informed that when the war was over the list would be exchanged with the Union government. He undertook the work and was allowed outside of the stockade during the night. His desk was next to that of Wirz. From the way things were conducted generally Dorence conceived the idea that the death register would never be preserved, and so he quietly and secretly copied it, keeping the roll always in his coat lining. It was a dangerous undertaking for had the rebels suspected it no doubt his career would have been summarily ended, for life was very cheap there and had but little chance at best. However, he persevered and by his forethought are preserved to the nation the names of 13,000 soldier dead, who perished in Andersonville.

Then comes the story of his trouble with the government, which had learned of his great work. At the close of his release from Andersonville, he had served twenty-two months since his capture. He came here to Terryville a skeleton of his former self. He was taken down with diphtheria, and lay at the point of death, but finally rallied, and before he had fully recuperated, had been summoned to Washington. His precious rolls were demanded for government use, and while he was anxious to publish them for the benefit of relatives and friends of the Andersonville victims, under threats of confiscation he consented his names should be copied. He then enlisted in the general service, U. S. A., and was detailed as a clerk in one of the departments at Washington.

The government had copied his rolls, but refused to return them. In July, 1865, he informed Secretary Stanton he could identify all of the graves at Andersonville if the work were undertaken immediately. The secretary of war ordered the work performed, and detailed Captain Moore and forty others, including Dorence, to go to Andersonville at once. Included in the party was Clara Barton, one of the world's greatest benefactors. The original rolls were also taken. Headboards were erected to the 13,000 martyrs, and the party returned. Shortly after the rolls were missed. No one knew where they were, until Dorence was questioned, when he promptly answered he had taken his property where he could find it, which he said the law allowed a man to do. He was told he could have twenty-four hours to return his rolls, but he said he was determined to keep them. He was then and there arrested, placed in the old capitol in prison; was tried by court martial and adjudged guilty, whereupon he was sent to Auburn state prison to serve at hard labor for eighteen months, fined $300, and to stand committed until the rolls were returned. He possessed the old Kentish spirit of never being conquered. In irons he was taken from Washington to Auburn, where he served for two months, when he was discharged without the formality of a pardon.

This came about because Secretary Stanton feared General B. F. Butler was about to start an investigation which was demanded by newspapers all over the country, the most persistent of which was the New York Tribune. Upon the release of Dorence his rolls were taken from their hiding place, put in alphabetical order, and 25,000 copies printed by the Tribune association, and placed on the book stands over the country before the government knew what was being done.

He was now in his twenty-first year, broken down in health, a victim of both the South and the North, and although he had been cruelly and unjustly punished so far as the government was concerned he was simply a discharged convict, released without the grace of a pardon. The government recognized this in a slight way by giving him a consulship in the far-off Seychelles Islands, and later transferred him to the far-off Society Islands in the South Pacific, where he served faithfully for twenty-six years. A few years ago the court martial was set aside by Congress, and he was given back the good name that should never have been taken away, but so far as compensation goes, he never was given anything in recognition of his great service, nor was he even allowed a pension.

The latter part of last September I had just returned from a trip across the country to the Pacific northwest, when I received a telegram from Dorence to come to San Francisco at once if I wished to see him alive. While I did not feel like making a second trip so quickly I reached my destination five days later. We had a splendid visit, so full of brotherly love and reminiscences. He was up and around and I had hoped he was needlessly alarmed, and so I returned. He continued to write every few days, but his weakness could be noticed as each letter the writing became more and more illegible, until the last which arrived the day he died, which was scarcely traceable.

The town may well be proud of its war heroes. There were many from here who gave up their lives on the battlefield, many who were maimed and injured under fire, and many whose health was impaired by exposure and hardship. Probably all of these have gone to their final reward, but some of the old guard is left, and while their lives were not sacrificed they, nevertheless, belong to the noble roll of honor, which sacrificed its youth and strength in preserving the nation.

Dorence Atwater is singled out because his career was different from that of the lot of the ordinary soldier. He was a patriot and martyr.

He, in his endeavor to preserve and give the information to relatives and friends of the Andersonville dead, undertook one of the most commendable of deeds, and while he did not look for or expect to receive any reward, had a right to believe his course should receive the sanction of the government, but instead to be brutally incarcerated at hard labor in state's prison, was beyond his youthful comprehension. Do you wonder, years later, in one of his letters he should remark, "the word soldier makes me mad, while the sight of a uniform makes me froth at the mouth." His self-imposed task, however, is appreciated by those whose loved ones rest at Andersonville, for they at least have the satisfaction of knowing the fate that befell them, that their graves have been preserved and identified, and in personal letters Dorence was given the thanks of those who valued his information. In all the intervening years he went on with his life work, uncomplaining, extending the good hand of fellowship, and when death came at the end of one day toward the last of November, he went to sleep with a smile, just as forgiving as when he said his prayers at his mother's knee. He is dead, but we shall perpetuate his memory in this village just as long as the granite and copper which composes his memorial shall endure.

Mrs. Rankin writes: Graduated from Cornell: Robert in 1904, George 1907, Everett in 1912. Robert an electrical engineer. George and Everett chemists. Robert was in Pittsburg a short time after he left college. In 1907 he went to South America and was there nine years. He came back to this country in 1915, and was on the Lusitania enroute for England. He had a thrilling experience but his life was saved. His account of the disaster was published in New York and Philadelphia papers. Robert is married and is now living in Pekin, China, doing important work there. George, after leaving college, went to the Carnegie Inst., at Washington, D. C., and was there for nine years, doing research work. After leaving there he was with the Pittsburg Plate Glass Co. for a time. He has recently been called to Washington, D. C., to do the work of a chemist for the government as long as the war lasts. Everett for the past four or five years has been with the Standard Oil Co. of New York. He has been in Singapore, is at present in Batavia, Java. My daughter was in Cornell for a time but later came to Columbia and took her degree. She has been and is still connected with Teachers' College as instructor in kindergarten education.

1949. James W., son of Edmund B., m. Mar. 10, 1850, Antoinette Carolina Halloway; d. Nov. 22, 1860; (2) Nov. 2, 1872, Antoinette E. Respass. He lived at Thomaston, Ga. He d. Dec. 21, 1913. The Thomaston Times in its obituary notice said:

The deceased was eight-seven years of age, and is survived by his wife, Mrs. Antoinette Respass Atwater; one son, Capt. James R. Atwater, and six daughters, Mrs. J. Henry Smith, of Griffin; Mrs. Fred Farris, of Atlanta; Mrs. George R. Turpin, of Macon; Mrs. William P. Leonard, of Talbotton; Mrs. Roland W. Spain, of New York city, and Mrs. A. J. King, of Macon.

Besides being one of the oldest and wealthiest of Thomaston citizens, he was one of the most prominent, influential and highly esteemed. Not only did he stand high in the affections of his home people but wherever he was known men respected and loved him. A citizen of another city who is one of the most prominent men in the state and who was a business associate of Captain Atwater's said of him: "Few men have lived to better purpose, or have had higher regard of their friends and acquaintances than Mr. Atwater."

Captain Atwater was a man of strong convictions and once he took a stand in a matter he was almost unshakable. It is said of him that above all things he despised a hypocrite and hated all manner of shams. He was also a man who loved his friends and would stop at nothing to aid them. There are many who owe their business success to his assistance and counsel.

Captain Atwater served through the civil war with distinction. He was noted for his bravery in battle and his efficiency in military tactics, being made captain of five different companies to perfect their organization. Many of his comrades who are still living gratefully bear testimony to his valorous record.

After the conflict ended he was active in the politics of Upson county, serving as county commissioner for twelve years, during which terms of service he was one of the first men in the state to refuse a permit for a cross road saloon.

Captain Atwater was also one of the founders of the R. E. Lee Institute of Thomaston, and for twenty-three years acted as chairman for the board of trustees for that well known institution.

For years Captain Atwater was a leader in every movement looking to the upbuilding and betterment of his town and county.

1962. Martha V., dau. of Jehiel, m. Sept. 3, 1903, Rev. J. W. Jenkins of the North Carolina conference, M. E. church south. He d. July 4, 1906. She was educated in Greensboro Woman's College, Greensboro, N. C. Throughout her whole life there was an earnest desire to do some kind of mission work. Discouraged by her friends on account of her delicate health the idea and ambition still clung to her. She felt that she must do something in a worth while way, as she walked along life's road. When, without any effort on her part, she was elected as first matron of the Methodist Orphanage at Raleigh, N. C., she accepted, believing that her opportunity had come. Later, when she gave her hand in marriage to Rev. J. W. Jenkins, founder and superintendent of the orphanage, she knew that this was her life work, and together they worked with unceasing labor until, from a feeble beginning, the orphanage had grown into proportions that promised perpetuity. Then Mr. Jenkins laid down his beautiful life, and bound more closely than ever to the product of their united efforts, she has mothered the little orphan children who have been denied the love and care of fathers and mothers, and brought to them the light and joy of real home life.

Slight, small, frail in body, but great in soul. Mattie Atwater Jenkins has given her whole life for the happiness of others. With a sympathetic mind, a hand skilled in helpfulness, a heart that loves widely, an unusual measure of ability in managing and controlling, she has shared the hopes and heartaches of hundreds of boys and girls who delight to call her mother, and in whose lives "Miss Mattie" is a beacon light.

2434. Colonel James R., son of James W., banker, manufacturer and state senator, was b. Aug. 16, 1872, in Thomaston, Georgia. In childhood and youth, Colonel Atwater's tastes led him to the study of literature, and especially history. He was never very strong physically, but was more inclined to remain indoors and read than to run out and romp with the other boys. He was a good student. At R. E. Lee Institute, Thomaston, where he graduated in 1890, he finished at the head of his class. Observing the restless and brilliant genius of his son, the father set himself to the task of training it in the right channels. He gave him small tasks to perform, partly to teach him the love of work and partly to keep him out of mischief. He took him into his private banking room and taught him the banking business. The son was active, intelligent and ambitious. It was natural for him to work. In fact, he could do almost anything he tried, except remain idle. There are many such men in the world—the restless, pushing kind. They are the ones who accomplish things, who “bring things to pass.”

The banking business did not occupy all of Colonel Atwater's time. He took some part in social matters. He joined the Upson Guards, Company H, Second Infantry, National Guard of Georgia; was promoted to the rank of Captain, and held the position for ten years. Governor Terrell appointed him Assistant Quartermaster-General of the state, with the rank of Major. In 1907 he was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel as an aide on the staff of Governor Hoke Smith; then after serving on the staff of Governor Brown, is now a retired military officer with rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. He has been Mayor of Thomaston for nearly twelve years. For several years he served as a member of the Board of Education of Upson County. He is also Past Master of the local lodge of Masons, is a Shriner, and Past Chancellor Commander of the local lodge of the Woodmen of the World.

COL. JAMES R. ATWATER, No. 2434.

MRS. JAMES WALTON ATWATER.

Colonel Atwater is a Democrat and has always taken an interest in politics. He was Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of his county for ten years. At the present time he is Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of the Sixth Congressional District. At the last election he was chosen to represent his county in the State Senate. Though still a young man, he has already been prominently spoken of as a desirable man to represent his district in the national House of Representatives. Certainly, it is fair to assume that one who has displayed such skill in the making and holding of friends, and such sound judgment and executive ability in the transaction of public business, cannot but have brilliant prospects before him.

But it is in the business world that Colonel Atwater's talents have found their most natural element. From banking he branched out into the manufacturing business. He chose those occupations because he liked them best and because they promised the most remunerative returns. The following are a few of the positions he has held: President Thomaston Cotton Mills (1901), and the Odessa Bank of Odessdale; Vice president Upson County Oil Mills, the Thomaston Cotton Mills (since 1901), and the Upson Banking and Trust Company, which he founded in 1900.

Colonel Atwater is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He still finds time to do considerable reading. He says that he has derived some benefit from everything he ever read. His favorite recreation is walking alone in the woods. Asked as to his idea of the best way to succeed in life, Colonel Atwater said: "My idea is to study well your chosen profession or other work, and know it well and stick to it with your might. Observe good moral habits and be sober in all things."

The people of Upson county, where Colonel Atwater resides, have been kind to him in many ways. The 1610th Militia District of this county bears his name—"Atwater District"—in which is situated the Township of Atwater, and where the Atwater High School is located. This school is endowed by him, and each year receives liberal aid from his purse.

On February 14th, 1917, he was married to Miss Annie Elizabeth Walton, the second daughter of Peter Wyche and Susan Reid Walton of Madison, Georgia. His wife comes from a long line of distinguished people, who are direct descendants of George Walton, signer of the Declaration of Independence.

On account of failure of health, he was forced to retire from active business upon advice of physicians, and resigned his official connection with all his business enterprises, except the Thomaston Cotton Mills of Thomaston, Georgia, where he is still an active member of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors. He is a large stockholder in this industry, and has watched it grow from a small five thousand to a sixty thousand spindle mill, with assets now around three million dollars.

After the death of his parents, upon him devolved the closing of their extensive financial interests. The personal property was promptly divided out among the heirs; and the large real estate holdings, by agreement, now rests for twenty years in the "Atwater Estates, Incorporated," of which he is president.

While having fully regained his health and strength, and possessing enough worldly goods to make further gain unnecessary Colonel Atwater and his wife have realized that the accumulation of money and means, is, after all, not the thing most to be sought in this life, and are devoting their remaining years to the uplift and benefit of their fellow man—scattering sunshine and sympathy in the paths of the despondent, giving material aid to the needy wherever they may be found, passing the winter months in the balmy climate of Florida and the summers in the mountains of the Carolinas.

They reside at their beautiful home at Thomaston, loved, honored and respected.

LETTERS OF INTEREST TO THE FAMILY.

330 Lakewood Drive,
Vancouver, B. C., April 23, 1918.

Francis Atwater, Esq.,
41 Dwight Street,
New Haven, Conn.

Dear Sir:—

I regret I am unable to give you very much information regarding my family connections. I was born at Northfleet in the county of Kent, England, in 1866. My father was a native of Gravesend, Kent, and he was drowned at sea when I was about three and a half years. My mother's name was Caroline Hills and after my father's death my mother, sister, and I lived with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Hills, and lost touch to a great extent with the Attwater side of the family. I have one sister married to Mr. Ernest Lackford of Gravesend, and they have one daughter, Ethel. I can only just remember seeing Grandfather and Grandmother Attwater when I was a tiny child, and believe they both died shortly after. There is not much doubt the family originated in the hamlet of Lenham, Kent, and that we are direct descendants. I lived for many years in Canterbury, Kent, and while there was visited by a Mr. Lyman Baggs, U. S. A., who claimed to belong to the family through his mother. I am married and have one daughter, Winifred, aged 20, and two sons, Ronald, 17, and Norman, 16, all living with me at the above address. We left the old country in 1911.

I am sorry I cannot furnish you with more definite information, but trust this will be of interest to you.

Yours sincerely,

WM. ATTWATER.

Harry P. Atwater, Lawyer,

Mr. Francis Atwater,
41 Dwight St.,
New Haven, Conn.

Dear Sir:—

Answering your several communications relative to the Atwater Family History, and in reply to same will say that I have not the reliable data at hand. All I know is that I am the son of Wesley D. Atwater, who is still living in Cool, California. A letter addressed to my brother, A. B. Atwater, at the same address will likely procure the information you desire as they have all the family history there.

Truly yours,

HARRY P. ATWATER.

Gt. Falls, Montana,
Feb. 18th, 1918.

Francis Atwater,
New Haven, Conn.

Dear Sir:

Replying to your letter of inquiry dated 11th inst, permit me to say that I have been away from my birthplace in New Brunswick, Canada, for 33 years, and have forgotten dates.

My father was born in 1809 in the county of Kent, England.

My mother was born in 1827, in Peel, New Brunswick, Canada.

There were 13 children—6 of them still born.

Perhaps if you wrote my sister, Mrs. Thos. McCray at Peel Carlton Co., New Brunswick, Canada, she might give you the desired information.

Very truly yours,

A. B. ATWATER.

March 26, 1918.

Francis Atwater,
New Haven, Conn.

Dear Sir:—

We have not received any other request for information about our branch of the Atwater family. Nothing but one which came last week, forwarded to us from our home at Helena, Montana.

I regret that I can give you very little authentic information. My husband—Alvord Benjamin Atwater, was born at Peel, Carleton Co., N. B. His father, also Benjamin Atwater, came with his father and a brother from Co. Kent, England. The brother, I believe, returned to England. The father died and the son, Benjamin, married and had a large family. My husband came to Montana about thirty years ago. We were married Oct. 24, 1884, and have one child, born Oct. 3, 1901.

Alvord Benjamin Atwater m. Mary Babcock Moore, M. D.

Dorothy Babcock Atwater.

I will refer you to Mr. A. B. Atwater, Great Falls, Mont., who can at least tell you of his immediate family though I think he knows very little more than I have written you of his grandfather.

Mrs. Tom McCrae of Peel, Carleton Co., N. B., could tell you more perhaps. She is a younger sister of Mr. Atwater and has always lived at Peel.

Am sorry not to be able to help you write your book, but I only know one Atwater.

Yours very truly,

MARY BABCOCK ATWATER,
Iowa City, Iowa.

Houston, Texas, May 7th, 1918.

Mr. Francis Atwater,
41 Dwight St.,
New Haven, Conn.

Dear Sir:

A long absence has prevented my answering your requests for information in regard to the "Atwater Family."

In reply will say that I come from the Attwaters of Wiltshire (County Wilts) in the south of England, who always spelt their names Attwater instead of Atwater. The family was a prominent one in Wiltshire and Gloucester many years ago and owned farms near the villages of Britford and Bodenham. In the old Britford village grave yard there were many very old tombstones upon which the names could be deciphered.

I left England in 1873, went to Canada and from there to Texas. Since then my mother and father have died, also my brother and sister, who were unmarried. I expect there are some cousins still living in that part of England but have not heard from any Attwaters in England for many years. I know of no relations residing in the United States or Canada.

Yours very truly,

H. P. ATTWATER.

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 10, 1910.

W. C. Atwater,
50 Congress St., Boston.

Dear Sir—I am writing you this letter to ask you if you are any relation to me. I am an orphan. I have found all the names of Attwaters

I could find. Lewis Atwater was my father, and Mary was my mother. The records in the State House indicate that they were married in Boston December 15, 1889, and I was born to them Dec. 27, 1891, and went under the state's care Feb. 3, 1892, but as I am eighteen years of age now I am looking for them in the utmost.

The state records also state that my mother was born in England and my father was born in Maine.

Yours respectfully,

ALFRED A. ATWATER,
273 Second St., Pittsfield, Mass.

307 Elm St., Shenandoah, Iowa.

Mr. Francis Atwater,
Meriden, Conn.

Dear Sir:

Will you please allow me to inquire of you regarding a point in Atwater genealogy?

I have here a dear friend, a Mrs. Eliza Marks Farnham, eighty-three years of age, who is the daughter of a Sarah Atwater, of New Haven, Conn. For years I have heard Mrs. Farnham speak of her mother and of her desire to visit New Haven and learn of her mother's people. Not long ago I saw a notice of an Atwater History and when Mrs. Farnham was told of the book she immediately gladly purchased it. But it does not seem sure that her mother's name is in the book. If you could learn whether it should be there, or inform me of any way in which I might learn about it, I should be most glad, for it would give the greatest pleasure to a remarkably bright and sweet lady.

Sarah Atwater, mother of Mrs. Farnham, died in May, 1863, aged 76 years, nearly 77 years, hence she was almost surely born in 1786. She married first a George Todd, by whom she had a son, her oldest child, Benjamin Todd, and four daughters, Sarah, Anna, Lucy and Amelia. Mrs. Farnham has always understood that her mother was born, raised and first married in New Haven, Conn., and that probably her eldest child was born there. But about that time the family must have moved to New York state, for the four daughters were born in Homer, New York. Of these four daughters, Sarah, married a Mr. Watkins, Co. Treas. of Grundy Co., Ill.; Anna married a Mr. Buckley, whose brother's life-sized portrait is in Memorial Hall, Akron, Ohio; Lucy married Seymour Stevens and lived in Seneca Co., New York; and Amelia married Daniel Farnham, in 1843.

After the birth of these five children Sarah Atwater Todd's husband died and she married second, Rev. David Marks (who had been married before) and had four children by him, all born in Seneca Co., New York. Eliza was the oldest, born in 1824; Mary, Cynthia, and Daniel. Mary married Addison Lyon, first cousin of Dio Lewis; Cynthia married a man whose parents lived in New York City. Daniel went to California and then to Australia.

Eliza married Willard T. Farnham, brother to Amelia Todd's husband, May 17, 1850, in Ill. She knows much less about her family because of this circumstance; her half brother, David Marks, like his father and two uncles was a minister. Before Eliza, Mrs. Farnham, was thirteen years old, he persuaded her parents to let her go home to Rochester, N. Y., with him to be educated for a missionary to India. They were well acquainted with, and frequently received letters from the Judson family telling of the great work needed. From Rochester, Rev. David Marks, Jr., decided to go to Oberlin, Ohio, to study further, and his sister went with him and was an Oberlin College student.

The brother died in Oberlin and this broke up the family, but the sister went to teaching in New York, Ohio and Illinois, with some study at Chicago Academy, principal, Mrs. Barnwell, sister of the Burritt brothers, Elihu, the learned blacksmith, and the author of an astronomy.

But I beg your pardon for this big account, written to a genealogist, rather than to a very busy person of other affairs. Mrs. Farnham is a very interesting person, as a little autobiography of hers shows.

Of the brother and sisters of Sarah Atwater Todd Marks, Mrs. Farnham understands that there were two or three sisters, Mary or Polly the name of one of them, and only one brother, Aman (or Anan) by name. Some of this fits in with your record on page 180 of your Atwater History of the children of David, son of Jonathan. There is no Mary or Polly given and the residence was Bethany instead of New Haven. But Bethany is in New Haven Co., and not very far from the city of New Haven.

I do beg your pardon for this very long, unnecessarily long letter, but I do so hope that the right place of Sarah Atwater Todd Marks can be positively located in the Atwater History.

Respectfully yours,

(Miss) ALICE PRIEST.
